WASHINGTON NEWS.

Final Adjournment—Curious Scene in the House—Democratic Hypocrisy—Seneca Sand-Stone—The Ocean Cables—Mr. Trumbull and the Speaker—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The House deemed it best not to tie its hands on the subject of final adjournment of the session, and so today, by a vote of 129 to 77, referred the Senate resolution to the Ways and Means Committee. It was called up by Mr. DAWES, who did not advocate its passage very heartily, and the first feature that was noticed in the situation was the presence of Mr. SCHURZ on the floor lobbying with the Democrats and revenue reformers against the passage of the resolution. He seemed a great deal more at home in the company of such men as WELLS and CREBS than among the Republicans. Mr. FARNSWORTH led off in opposition to the adoption of the resolution, and was followed by Gen. GARFIELD, who deprecated what might prove to be a premature decision of the question of adjournment. Messrs. BROOKS, COX and HOLMAN, on the Democratic side, opposed early adjournment, all the time professing not to be actuated by any partisan motives, but all the time displaying the demagogism that so conspicuously marks the action of the Democrats in Congress at the present time. This was strikingly illustrated by Mr. MAYNARD, who impaled them on the records of the Globe, showing that early in the second session of the Forty-first Congress, when Mr. STILES, of Pennsylvania, a Democrat, introduced a resolution to adjourn on the second Monday of April following, they then voting from conviction as to the policy of short sessions and ability to finish the business, all put themselves on record in its favor. Today, with the hypocrisy which pervades all they do now as a party, they voted against it, not because of any regard for the public interest, but to throw upon a Republican House the responsibility of prolonging the session, hoping that in such prolongation something of evil import to the Republicans may happen, of which they hope to take advantage. Gen. BANKS also opposed fixing the time of adjournment, because of the importance of pending business, while Judge BINGHAM made a terse and forcible speech, demonstrating that the business would be better done if the House limited its session, and that if the exigency should demand, the Republican majority would of course extend the session, and they would do that too without asking the opinions or the votes of the Democratic minority in either House. Gen. BUTLER made a good point that the business of the country always demanded a short session, so that it could adjust itself secure from disturbances for a year. The Republicans made a thoroughly non-partisan matter of it, but the Democrats did not, the protectionists in that party voting with the free traders, while the protectionists on the Republican side voted both ways, according to the interest they feel in the tariff question. The resolution will now probably remain in the Ways and Means until that body makes a report of the matter of a reduction of taxation, and Mr. DAWES took occasion today, during the debate, to correct the impression sought to be conveyed by Mr. BROOKS, that the Committee was not going to be ready to report until April or May. He informed the House that he believed the Committee would report long before that time. The difference between Mr. DAWES and his Republican associates and Messrs. BROOKS, COX, WOOD, HOLMAN et al., is simply this, that the former are in earnest in the matter of securing a reduction of taxation in the tariff and internal revenue, while the latter hope by indirect methods to defeat such a result, and then in the next campaign hold the Republicans responsible for it. The country may therefore look for a thoroughly dishonest and hypocritical course of action on the part of the Democrats during this session, their objective point being the securing of something that will relieve them of their desperate poverty of material for assault on the Republican Party.

REPRESENTATION.

The Apportionment bill was passed by the Senate today, with two amendments—one merely verbal, and the other an additional section recognizing the Fourteenth Amendment and providing for its enforcement. The number and distribution of the Representatives remains as fixed by the House bill, in spite of the efforts of a few Senators to secure some changes. It was noticeable that the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee gave the amendments, which came from his Committee, a very cool support, and after the Senate had decided not to change the section making the apportionment, he voted against all amendments. The bill now goes back to the House for concurrence in the amendments.

A DISPUTE IN THE SENATE.

There was a sharp passage between Mr. TRUMBULL and the Vice-President, at the conclusion of the morning hour, today, relative to the agreement made on Friday last, that the vote should be taken upon the Apportionment bill next day. The nature of the agreement and the question raised about the meaning of the word "to-morrow," was explained in last night's dispatches. Mr. COLFAX stated at 1 o'clock that there were two special orders assigned to the day, one being the Amnesty bill and the other the Apportionment, but that the Amnesty had the precedence by reason of having been first assigned to the day. Mr. TRUMBULL said the Vice-President was mistaken about the Apportionment bill that had been assigned to Saturday, and it had been expressly agreed that the vote should be taken that day. Among honorable men, he said, giving the word a strong emphasis, he knew of no more disreputable act than the adjournment to Monday had been, after the agreement that had been entered into. Mr. COLFAX administered a sharp rebuke, saying that when the statement of the Chair could not be accepted, it was no longer proper that he should preside over the Senate. He then showed that the word Saturday had not been used. That the word "to-morrow", in a legislative sense, always had been held to mean the next legislative day, and sustained thoroughly his first statement of what was the business of the day. If Mr. TRUMBULL had not, with Mr. SCHURZ, after embarrassing the adjournment resolution as long as possible, left the chamber to dodge the final vote, he might, at the time of adjournment, have had the business in his charge in its appropriate position for action. The Apportionment was finally given the preference, and Amnesty will come up to-morrow.

OPINIONS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Several interesting opinions were announced in the Supreme Court today. In the Kentucky mandamus suit against Secretary BOUTWELL, a pro forma mandamus was ordered to issue which is in effect an order on the Secretary to pay the money, or show cause why it should not be paid. On the return to the mandamus, the whole case will be reargued on its merit. An opinion on the Drake amendment, so called, which is a law that the possession of a Presidential pardon should be prima-facie evidence of a man's disloyalty, and debar him from any rights before the Court of Claims, was read by Chief-Justice CHASE, in which Justices CLIFFORD, SWAYNE, FIELD, STRONG and DAVIS united. The Court holds that the law is unconstitutional. Justices MILLER and BRADLEY dissented from the opinion.

AMNESTY.

The Amnesty bill comes up again to-morrow with an agreement that the vote shall not be taken till some subsequent day. This may result in delaying the vote for some days, since it will be some time before there can be a full Senate after to-morrow. It is uncertain whether Mr. ROBERTSON will go ahead and force the vote or wait till the Committee of Investigation gets back from New-York again.

ABBOTT-VANCE.

The principle involved in the Abbott-Vance case in the Senate was conclusively settled by the House in the Thirty-ninth Congress in the case of JOHN YOUNG BROWN, of Kentucky, wherein Mr. DAWES made a report which was sustained by a House largely Republican, that whatever the ineligibility of the person receiving the majority of the votes, there was no law, precedent, or justice in awarding the seat to a person whom the majority did not elect. It is believed that there are no precedents for any different decision save these of the English Parliament.

THE SYNDICATE.

The attention of the House will not be called to the Ways and Means report on the syndicate until Wednesday, instead of Tuesday, the minority not being able sooner to prepare their report. It is understood that Mr. BROOKS does not unite with Messrs. KEER and BECK.

THE SENECA SAND-STONE BILL.

At last the Democrats in the House, with the consent of the Republicans, have got a resolution through to investigate the use of Seneca sand-stone in the construction of the State Department. This little matter has a curious history. Ever since the session began there have been efforts going on to get somebody to father this resolution. First, Hon. Mr. PERRY, of Albany, Democrat, but a safe, prudent man, was approached on the subject, but before he would consent to father the measure, he resolved to make a private investigation on his own account, which resulted in his quietly declining to have anything to do with it. Next Mr. SHOEMAKER, of Pennsylvania, a Republican, was approached, but after apparently consenting, he, too, failed to stand sponsor for it. At last, today, Mr. GETZ, who evidently has not made any investigation, was prevailed upon to propose the resolution, and the Republicans, most of whom well understand the facts in the case, quietly permitted him to put his foot in it. This will prove one of the most ridiculous "water haulin'" that has yet been set up. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds could make their report to-morrow, if necessary, and when they do, some facts will be made public which the slanderers of the President and of other public officers will wish had been kept quiet.

THE TRANSATLANTIC CABLES.

The directors of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company have just issued a private circular to their shareholders concerning the rumors affecting the condition of the Company's cables. They consider it their duty to inform their shareholders that according to the results of the tests reported by the Company's superintendents at Valentia and Heart's Content, the insulation of both the cables show a considerable decrease. They add, however, that this decrease of insulation does not at present interfere with the regular and rapid transmission of messages; and they have sent an able electrician to Valentia to supplement the tests made by the Company's Superintendents.

DEMOCRATIC CROCODILE TEARS FOR CUBA.

The House had its usual weekly flurry over Cuba today. Mr. VOORHEES engineered it. His resolution providing for a recognition of the belligerent rights of Cuba, was preceded by a long preamble which was as insultingly worded with regard to Spain as ingenuity could make it. Of course the Republicans were united against any such language however they may have felt in regard to Cuban belligerency, and the Democrats could not get even a majority, and a two-thirds vote was necessary to suspend the rules so as to pass it. Mr. BROOKS subsequently offered a similar resolution, couched in more guarded and courteous terms, but Mr. VOORHEES objected, and both went to keep company with Mr. COX's resolution in the Foreign Affairs Committee room. Later in the day Gen. BANKS expressed his opinion that Congress should not adjourn before taking decisive energetic action in regard to Cuba, from which the inference is drawn that the Committee will act favorably.

THE LATEST PENSION BILL.

Gen. GARFIELD made an unsuccessful effort in the House today to recall the bill which passed on the 18th instant, granting arrears of pensions and fixing the time when they shall begin. It was opposed by Mr. MOORE, Chairman of the Pensions Committee, but Gen. GARFIELD showed that it passed without sufficient consideration, at a very early hour in the day, with many members not in their seats, and with many others not knowing the scope of the bill, which it was now found would take thirty-two millions from the Treasury. The motion to recall did not prevail, because the Speaker ruled that it would require a two-thirds vote to suspend the rule.

PERSONAL.

Mr. THOMAS NAST is spending a week in the city, the guest of Hon. N. P. CHIPMAN. Mr. NAST is very warmly and heartily greeted everywhere.

SALT.

The salt manufacturers representing the interests of Ohio, Michigan, and Onondaga County, New-York, will have a hearing before the Senate Finance Committee to-morrow, and before the Ways and Means on Thursday. Hon. GEO. F. COMSTOCK, of Syracuse, is their chief spokesman.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS.

Mr. CREA has been appointed Assessor of Internal Revenue for the First Virginia District. The following have been appointed Store-keepers: S. S. Burney, of Wisconsin; J. R. McCullough, C. C. Bell, and S. V. Parrent, of Kentucky. The President sent the following nominations to the Senate today: To be Postmasters—H. L. Tillotson, at Nevada; Mrs. L. C. Albertson, at Atlantic City, N. J.; Sylvanus Milner, at Mount Vernon, Ind.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

The Joint Committee on the Library today heard W. P. HAZARD, J. C. POTTER, R. SHERMAN and others, as a delegation from the publishers, paper-makers and printers of Philadelphia, in opposition to the enactment of an International Copyright law, as proposed by resolution of Hon. S. S. COX, and also heard an argument delivered by GILBERT BURLING, of New-York, representing the artists of that City, in favor of such a measure for their protection. The Committee adjourned until Feb. 12, when the subject will be considered further.

STAMPED TOBACCO BURNED AT CHICAGO.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided not to refund the value of stamps on packages of tobacco destroyed by the great fire in Chicago, being satisfied that he has no warrant of law to grant the relief asked. Relief can only be given by Congress.

A Legal Decision in Favor of the Government.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 29.—In the United States Circuit Court, in the case of the United States vs. DANIEL G. DUSTIN and others for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States of taxes upon certain distilled spirits manufactured in the Sixth Ohio District, in which a demurrer had been filed on the ground that prosecution was barred by the two-years' statute of limitation, Judge EMMONSON, on Saturday, rendered a decision that the thirtieth section of the act of Congress of March, 1867, punishing conspiracies, was a revenue law, and the period of limitation for offenses against said section was five years instead of two.

ASIA.

The Revolt of the Looshais in British India—Destruction of a Town by an Earthquake.

BOMBAY, Jan. 29.—The British expedition under Gen. BOURCHIER, which is operating against the Looshias on the north-eastern frontier of India, attacked a force of the latter on Friday last, and inflicted considerable loss upon them. The expedition also suffered some loss, having four men killed and a few wounded. Gen. BOURCHIER himself received slight injuries.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 29.—Intelligence was received here today of the total destruction yesterday, by an earthquake, of Schamachi, a town of Asiatic Russia, Transcaucasus. From the few details received of this terrible disaster, it is learned that the shocks were very protracted and that many lives were lost.

FRANCE.

Address of the Count of Chambord to the People—Paying off the Indemnity.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—A manifesto has been issued by the Count DE CHAMBORD to the French people, in which he claims the right divine, and says: "I shall never abdicate my claim to the throne of France. I shall never forsake the monarchical principle, which I have preserved intact for forty years, and which is the last hope of France's greatness and liberties. Cæsarism and anarchy threaten France because her salvation is sought in personal questions, and not in principles. I shall ever uphold the flag of France, and aid in restoring the ancient prestige of her armies. Time presses, and alliances and organizations are urgent. The happiness of France is my only ambition, and I will never consent to become a revolutionist where I am the legitimate King." The Committee of Patrons of the movement for raising subscriptions to pay the German indemnity, have today announced their preference for a national loan of four milliards of francs.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The English Press on the Alabama Claims—Expressions of Uneasiness about the American Demands.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Alabama claims and their consideration before the Geneva Board of Arbitration are the themes uppermost in the English journals. Apprehension is expressed as to the character and amount of the American demands, and the uneasiness is reflected on 'Change, where it has a depressing influence on American securities. An arrival at Liverpool brings a report that the ship Almora, of St. Johns, N. B., was recently destroyed by fire at sea, and it was feared that all on board perished. The Almora was built at Quebec in 1853, and was 1,107 tons burden.

John Bright on Public Affairs—Colliery Strike.

LONDON, Jan. 30—5 A. M.—At a meeting of the electors of Birmingham last night, a letter was read from Hon. JOHN BRIGHT, in which he expresses the hope that he will be able to attend a portion of the forthcoming session of Parliament. He also advises efforts to decrease the expenditures of the Government. A large number of soldiers have struck work, and disturbances are apprehended at Blaenavon. The military are under arms. A motion was submitted at last evening's meeting of the Paris Jockey Club for the exclusion of all Germans, but was rejected.

JAIL DELIVERIES.

An Arkansas Jail Forced Open—Escape of Two Men Under Sentence of Death, and Three Other Desperadoes.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CAMDEN, Ark., Jan. 29.—A general jail delivery was effected at an early hour yesterday morning by the inmates of our County Jail, aided by several unknown accomplices. Two of the escaped prisoners were under sentence of death; one, named TRAMMELL, convicted of the murder of his wife, the other, named HOWELL, condemned for the commission of rape. Two of the others were committed to await their trial for murder, and there was another one in for forgery, making five in all who escaped. The Sheriff of the county has offered a large reward for their recapture, but no arrests have been made up to the hour of sending this dispatch.

Escape of Prisoners from a Kentucky Jail.

COVINGTON, Ky., Jan. 29.—About 9 o'clock yesterday morning three prisoners escaped from the City Jail, by means of a key taken from the turnkey. Their names were BEN. CRUZY, charged with burglary; GEORGE FAULKNER, a horse-thief, and JOHN R. LAMB, charged with forgery.

Escape of Convicts at Princeton, Ind.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 29.—WASHINGTON WALKER, FRANK OSBORN, JAMES JOHNSON, and THOMAS CAMP, or KEMP, the latter a murderer, broke jail at Princeton, Ind., on Saturday last and are still at large.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—7 P. M.—The barometer has risen since Sunday afternoon at all stations from the Pacific coast eastward to the Hudson, and Atlantic Ocean, and the temperature has very generally fallen east of the Mississippi, but has risen throughout the Missouri Valley, the highest barometer advancing slowly eastward into Arkansas and the Ohio Valley. The area of lowest barometer is now in Maine. Brisk westerly winds have prevailed since Sunday night from Michigan to the middle Atlantic coast, and now extend to the East Atlantic and have increased to high winds on the New-Jersey coast and Lake Ontario. Clear weather has prevailed south of the lakes, and clearing weather in New-England. Cloudy weather, with occasional snow, continues to be reported from Michigan to New-York. Cold north-westerly winds have prevailed on the Gulf coast.

The rivers have risen decidedly at Cincinnati and slightly at Shreveport.

PROBABILITIES.

The barometer will probably continue to rise on Tuesday from New-England to Florida, with cold north-west winds diminishing in force; rising barometer, with clearing weather and north-west winds prevail on the lakes; northerly winds veer to east, with increasing cloudy weather on the Gulf coast; brisk north-west winds prevail on the Middle and East Atlantic; dangerous winds are not anticipated to-night on the south Atlantic or Gulf coast.

IN NEW-YORK.

Yesterday was a bitterly cold day. The high wind which prevailed made the cold more perceptible. There was a light fall of snow between 1 and 6 o'clock in the morning. Thermometer at 6 A. M., 14°; 11 A. M., 14°; 2 P. M., 17°; 9 P. M., 13°. Barometer, 29.83, 29.92, 29.8, 30.15. Corresponding date last year, 24°, 29°, 32°, 30°.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Five men undertook to cross the Hudson River yesterday on the ice, near Rondout, in a blinding snow-storm. They became bewildered and walked into the open ferry track, but managed to escape.

IN POUGHKEEPSIE.

There are three inches of snow today.

The Collector of the Port of Troy.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 29.—R. H. MCCLELLAN has retired from the office of Collector of the Port, having received a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury saying that the President has suspended him under the rules and regulations of the Civil Service, and therefore McCLELLAN was holding office in violation of law. Having been duly removed, C. L. MCARTHUR is now installed in the position.

The Japanese Ambassadors Start for the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—The Japanese Embassy start East on a special train, Wednesday morning. They will remain a day or two at Sacramento, visit the silver mines at Virginia City, Nevada, and will then start for Salt Lake City, leaving there for Omaha as soon as the Union Pacific Railroad is declared open. Gov. IRO states that his speech, delivered at the banquet, last week, was written wholly by himself, and without assistance from anybody, American or Japanese.

ALBANY.

The Evening Session of the Legislature—Prospects for the Seventy's Charter—Tweed's Seat Still Vacant.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 29.—There was a bare quorum in the Senate this evening, and less than a quorum in the Assembly. Nothing of special interest was done in either House. The Governor has not yet signed the bill creating a Board of Audit to settle claims against the City, and doubt is expressed whether he will give it his assent. His objections are understood to be that no member of the Board is an elective officer or holds his position by a vote of the people. The Governor carefully examined the bill today. He will probably sign it or return it with a veto to-morrow.

THE CHARTER.

The Committee of Seventy's charter forms the chief topic of discussion among members, and it will probably be the next reform measure that will be acted upon by the Legislature. Thus far the criticisms upon it are rather favorable than otherwise. The Legislative Committee of the Seventy will have another hearing before the joint Committee of the two Houses, on Thursday next, when they will explain the prominent features of the charter more in detail. Mr. WHEELER is here on behalf of the Committee of Seventy, earnestly advocating the charter, and feels sanguine of its success.

TWEED STILL ABSENT.

The arrival of TWEED in Albany has been looked for on every train from New-York for a week past, but he has not yet made his appearance, and, outside of the surmises of newsmongers, there is no ground for supposing that he intends to. His case will be taken up on Thursday by the Senate Committee on Contested Seats, where he will be represented by his counsel, Mr. REYNOLDS. Senator JOHNSON, a Democrat, said a week ago, that if TWEED did not come here to occupy his seat, he should offer a resolution declaring it vacant, but he has not yet fulfilled his promise. S.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.....ALBANY, Monday, Jan. 29.

The Senate met at 7½ o'clock this evening. The bill to extend the time for the collection of taxes throughout the State was taken up in Committee of the Whole, and was ordered to a third reading. A bill to repeal section 1 of chapter 534 of the laws of 1855, under which a canal-boat and cargo may be forfeited in case the Captain takes on more cargo than his manifest calls for, was introduced. Mr. J. WOOD presented a bill to amend the charter of the Real Estate Trust Company of the City of New-York. It virtually authorizes this Company to repeal the Usury law. The bill relative to mortgages on personal property and the bill to authorize the Union House to hold additional real estate, were ordered to a third reading. The Senate then adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

The Assembly met this evening at 7½ o'clock. Among the bills introduced were the following: To amend the act increasing the number of Judges in Brooklyn City Court. Making the trustees of savings banks personally liable when owners of real estate.

REFUNDED ASSESSMENTS.

Mr. FIELDS offered a resolution that the Controller of the City and County of New-York report in writing within fifteen days the amount of money refunded in the last ten years on account of the illegality or error in assessments for public improvements; were levied for street openings or under what circumstances and to whom refunded; and that to aid the Controller the Counsel for the Corporation furnish him all the facts in relation to these cases in his office.

BILLS ALLEGED TO BE TAMPERED WITH.

Mr. SMYTH called up his resolution calling upon the Governor for information relating to certain bills purporting to have been sent to him with clauses in them which never passed the House. Mr. HUSTED called attention to the fact that Mr. JACOBS, now absent, desired to offer an amendment to this resolution, and it was laid on the table again.

After disposing of business on the General Orders the Assembly adjourned.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT

The Decisions Rendered Yesterday—The Captured Property Claims—An Important Constitutional Principle Laid Down.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—In the Supreme Court of the United States, today, the following opinions were delivered:

No. 17.—The United States vs. Klein, Administrator of Wilson.—Appeal from the Court of Claims.—The question in this case is whether or not the proviso relative to suits for the proceeds of abandoned and captured property in the Court of Claims contained in the Appropriation act of July 12, 1870, and known as Drake's amendment, debars the claimant from recovering, as administrator of WILSON, the proceeds of certain cotton belonging to defendant, which came into the possession of the agents of the Treasury Department as captured or abandoned property, and the proceeds of which were paid into the Treasury. The Court, after a lengthy consideration of the rights of property, as affected by the late civil war, in the hands of citizens engaged in hostilities against the Government, conclude that the title to the proceeds of the property which came into the possession of the Government by capture or abandonment, except as to property used in actual hostilities, was in no case divested out of the original owner, and it was for the Government to determine whether the proceeds should be restored to the owner or not. The promise of the reservation of all rights of property made in the proclamation of pardon and amnesty of the 8th of December, 1863, decides that question affirmatively as to all persons who availed themselves of the proffered pardon. It was competent for the President to annex to his offer of pardon any conditions or qualifications he should see fit. But after those conditions and qualifications had been satisfied, the pardon and its connected promises took full effect. The restoration of the proceeds became the absolute right of the persons pardoned, on application within two years of the close of the war. This was in part promised for an equivalent. Pardon and restoration of political rights were in return for the oath prescribed and its fulfillment. To repeal it would be a breach of faith not less cruel and astounding for a people to abandon a freed people whom the Executive had promised to maintain in their freedom. The owner of the cotton in this case had done certain acts which this Court has adjudged to be acts in aid of the rebellion, but he had abandoned the cotton and the agent of the Treasury Department, by whom it was sold and the proceeds paid into the Treasury; and he took and did not violate the amnesty oath under the President's proclamation. Upon this, the Court of Claims pronounced him entitled to a judgment for the proceeds. This decree was rendered on the 26th of May, 1869, and the appeal was taken to this Court on the 30th of June, and filed here on the 11th of December, 1869. The judgment in the case of PADELFORD, (9 Wall, 531,) which, in its essential feature, was the same with this case, was rendered on the 30th of April, 1870. It affirmed the judgment of the Court of Claims in his favor, soon afterward, the proviso in question was introduced as a proviso to the clause in the General Appropriation bill, appropriating a sum of money for the payment of judgments of the Court of Claims, and became a part of the act as assumed by the Court with but little consideration in either House of Congress. The proviso declares in substance that no pardon, acceptance, oath or other acts performed in pursuance or as a condition of pardon, shall be admissable in evidence in support of any claim against the United States in the Court of Claims, or to establish the right of any claimant to bring suit in that Court, or if already put in evidence, shall be used, or considered, on behalf of the complainant by said Court, or by the Appellate Court, on appeal. Proof of loyalty is required to be made according to the provisions of certain statutes, irrespective of the effect of any Executive proclamation, pardon or amnesty, or act of oblivion, and when judgment has been already rendered on other proof of loyalty, the Supreme Court, on appeal, shall have no further jurisdiction of the cause, and shall dismiss the same for want of jurisdiction. It is further provided, that whenever any pardon granted to any suitor in the Court of Claims for the proceeds of captured and abandoned property shall recite the substance that the person pardoned took part in the rebellion, or was guilty of any act of rebellion or disloyalty, and shall have been accepted in writing without express disclaimer and protestation against the fact so recited, such pardon or acceptance shall be taken as conclusive evidence in the Court of Claims, and on affidavit that the claimant did give and to the rebellion; and on proof of such pardon or acceptance—which proof may be made summarily or otherwise—the jurisdiction of the Court shall cease, and the suit shall be forthwith dismissed. After commencing upon suit to sue in the Court of Claims, the Court says, it is said that it is evident that the denial of jurisdiction of this Court, as well as to the Court of Claims, is founded solely on the application of a rule of decision prescribed by Congress. The Court has jurisdiction of the cause to a given point, but when it is ascertained that a certain state of things exists, its jurisdiction is to cease, and it is required to dismiss the cause for want of jurisdiction. It is held that this is not an exercise of the acknowledged power of Congress to make exceptions and prescribe regulations to the appellate power. In this case the Court of Claims rendered judgment in favor of the claimants, and an appeal is taken to this Court, and it is directed to dismiss the appeal if it be found that the judgment must be affirmed, because of a pardon granted to the intestate of the claimants. This cannot be done without allowing that the Legislature may prescribe rules of decision to the Judicial Department of the Government in cases pending before it. It is said that Congress has inadvertently passed the limit which separates the legislative from the judicial power, and it is of vital importance that these powers be kept separate. Congress has already provided that the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction of the judgments of the Court of Claims on appeal, and it cannot prescribe a rule in conformity with which the Court must deny to itself the jurisdiction thus conferred, because its decision in accordance with settled law must be adverse to the Government and favorable to the suitor. The rule prescribed is also liable to exceptions as impairing the effect of a pardon, and thus infringing the constitutional power of the Executive. The motion to dismiss is denied, and the judgment of the Court of Claims affirmed. The Chief-Justice delivered the opinion. Justices MILLER and BRADLEY dissent on the ground that there was no interest in the former owner of the property under the "Captured and Abandoned Property" act, when the property had been sold and the proceeds paid into the Treasury under it. They concur as to the constitutional question involved, raised by the amendment in question.

No. 6.—Original.—Kentucky vs. The Secretary of the Treasury.—This is the application for a mandamus made by the Commonwealth of Kentucky to compel the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the war claims of the State. A rule to the Secretary to show cause why the writ should not issue was now ordered.

No. 431—Freedom, &c., Ship Protector.—Appeal from the Circuit Court for Alabama. A decree was rendered in this case on the 5th of April, 1861. The present appeal was filed the 6th of May, 1871. On a motion to dismiss the case, made as not within the time allowed by law the question was when the war begun and when it terminated. As this Court had previously held, in HAUGER vs. ABBOTT, that the period of the duration of the war was to be deducted from the time of the statute of limitations, though no such exception was mentioned in the statute, it is now held that it would be impracticable to fix precisely the day of its commencement or termination, and the Court, therefore, looking to the action of the political department of the Government, will, for the purposes of this case, assume the proclamation of the blockade to be the commencement of the war, and will take the proclamation of the President, of April 2, 1866, declaring the war terminated in certain States, including Alabama, as the termination of the war as to that State. The motion to dismiss the appeal was granted. It is also held that, by the acts of 1788 and 1803, writs of error or appeals must be brought within five years from the rendition of the judgments or decrees. The Chief-Justice delivered the opinion.

No. 71—Bark Delaware vs. The Oregon Iron Company. Appeal from the Circuit Court for the district of California. The libel case was filed to recover for the non-delivery of certain pig-iron laden on the bark at Portland, Oregon, to be conveyed to San Francisco. The cargo was shipped under a clean bill of lading but was stowed on deck and jettisoned for the safety of the ship, it being asserted by the claimants that the mode of storage was agreed to by the shippers and parol proof being offered to show the fact. The question was whether it should be admitted. The Court below held that on the ground of policy and principle such proof ought not to be received, and the conclusion was that the master must be deemed to have carried the goods on deck without the consent of the shipper, and in violation of the contract. The decree is affirmed here. Mr. Justice CLIFFORD delivered the opinion.

No. 63.—The Nicolson Pavement Company vs. Jenkins—Error to the Circuit Court for California.—The decree in this case reverses the judgment below, finding that the title to the pavement patent for the renewed and extended term belonging to the defendant in error, and remands the cause for a new trial. Mr. Justice DAVIS delivered the opinion.

No. 142.—Lord vs. Austin, error to the Supreme Court of California.—In this case it is held that Champagne wines imported by merchants of San Francisco, and still in the original packages, on storage in the ware-house of the importers, were not subject to the taxing power of the State. An order of the Court below, holding that they were, is reversed, and the cause remanded. Mr. Justice FIELD delivered the opinion.

TURKEY.

Tariff of Sanitary Dues Instituted Throughout the Empire.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—The following tariff of the sanitary dues of the Ottoman Empire went into operation on the 1st of September last:

ART. 1. The tariff of sanitary duties comprises the tonnare duty, which is payable by every vessel on its arrival in an Ottoman port; second, quarantine dues in cases of contumacy; third, additionally a duty levied upon pilgrims and travelers coming from Persia by land, and a duty on pilgrims and travelers going to Hedjaz and Yemen by sea.

ART. 2. Every vessel, from whatever country it may come, shall, on arriving in an Ottoman port, pay a duty, calculated according to its tonnage, according to the following rules: From one to 500 tons inclusive, 20 paras per ton; from 501 to 1,000 tons, 12 paras; from 1,001 tons and upward, 8 paras. In other words, each vessel shall pay 20 paras for the first 500 tons, 12 paras for the next 500 tons, and 8 paras for each exceeding 1,000 tons.

ART. 3. Each vessel entering an Ottoman port is required to pay the duty mentioned in the foregoing articles, but once in the course of its voyage; intermediate stations not being therein included.

ART. 4. Pilgrims and travelers from Persia, by land, shall pay a duty of ten piasters per head. This does not include the contingent quarantine dues specified in the foregoing article. A duty of fifty piasters shall be levied upon each corpse brought by land into the vilayet of Baghdad to be buried in the Persian burying place. Pilgrims and travelers entering Hedjas and Yemen, via a port of the Black Sea, shall pay a duty of ten piasters each.

ART. 5. Quarantine dues or duties: A. Duties for health officers and porters per day per man, paragraph 25; B. Hospital duties per day for each individual, 5; C. Duties on merchandise, to be disinfected goods, in bales or packages, per 100, okes, 3; rugs per bale, 10; large animals per head, 1; sheep and smaller animals, ¼. Vessels shall pay for disinfection as follows: From 1 to 100 tons, paragraph 10; from 100 to 200, 20; 200 to 400, 30; 400 to 1,000, 40.

ART. 6. Children under seven years of age, and indigent persons are exempted from the payment of the hospital duty.

ART. 7. The following vessels are exempted from all sanitary duties referred to in the foregoing articles, save the pay of guards: First, vessels of war; second, vessels which have entered the port in distress, provided they engage in no commercial operations while there; third, fishing vessels.

ART. 8. Patent and visa dues, and all other duties formerly levied and not mentioned in the present tariff, are abolished.

SUPPLEMENTARY ARTICLE. The sanitary dues are payable in all the ports of the Empire in Medjidi money.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 19, 1871.

LABOR IN CHICAGO.

No Work for Outsiders—Manifesto from the Employment Committee.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The following has been issued by Mr. N. K. FAIRBANKS, Chairman of the Employment Committee:

Mechanics and laborers in various parts of the country are making a great mistake in coming to this city in search of work. The supply of labor of all sorts is far in excess of the demand, and will be for two months to come. What building is going on is done slowly, and depends on the weather, which is too severe for out-door work, while the real advance in building will be delayed until Spring. Working men not understanding this are pouring in from all parts, spending their last dollar to get here, and then appealing to the Relief Committee for aid when they find there is no work to be had. Those journals which are urging these people to come here at this season are unintentionally doing them a cruel wrong, and adding to a city already overburdened with the destitute. Alderman M. B. BAILEY, charged with offering to receive money for his influence in securing the purchase of a school lot, was today tried and acquitted. The case of Alderman MONTGOMERY was postponed until to-morrow morning. Mayor MEDILL has vetoed the resolution by the Council to permit the completion of half-finished frame buildings in the fire limits.

Handsome Bequests to Wesleyan Institutions.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 29.—The will of the late ISAAC RICH was entered for probate today. After numerous private bequests, among which is $10,000 to Rev. JOSEPH CUMMINGS, President Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., Mr. RICH directs that all his estate and property shall finally go to the Trustees of the Boston Wesleyan University, and be under its management and direction, to promote and perpetuate piety and learning, and inasmuch as he hopes the Boston Theological Seminary will be merged in the Boston University.

Among other bequests, he leaves $100,000 to the Wesleyan Academy at Wilbraham, $25,000 to the Preachers' Aid Society of the New-England Conference, $25,000 to the New-England Educational Society, $25,000 to the Marume Wesleyan Academy at Readfield, $25,000 to the East Maine Academy at Bucksport, and the residue and remainder of all the property to the Wesleyan University at Middletown.

WM. CLAFLIN, of Newton; WM. H. WEST, of Dorchester, and JOHN GOLDSBURY, of Boston, are named as executors. The property under the will is sworn at $1,700,000.

The Ohio Legislature on Redistricting the State.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 29.—A resolution was introduced in the Senate today, requesting the Joint Committee on Redistricting the State to present such a bill as will be fair and just in its operations, and which, as nearly as possible, will give to each political party that proportionate representation in the lower House of Congress of the United States to which its popular vote entitles it. The resolution was ordered to be printed.

The Grand Duke Alexis.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 29.—The Grand Duke and suite crossed the river about 5 o'clock this evening, and took their special train for Louisville. No demonstration was made at their departure. The Duke will reach Louisville at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Serious Accident and Fire on the Pennsylvania Central Railroad.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 29.—On Saturday night, by a collision on one of the side tracks at Conemaugh's, Pennsylvania Central Railroad, two oil-tank cars were wrecked, the crude oil flowing over the ground and filling the gutters between the tracks. About 11 o'clock, a hot coal from a passing locomotive fell into the pool of oil, setting fire to the freight-cars and four passenger-cars on the sidings. All were entirely consumed.

NEW-ORLEANS.

Proceedings of the Congressional Committee.

NEW-ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—The Congressional Committee commenced their investigation this morning in the United States Court-room, in the Custom-house building, Gov. WARMOTH, having been previously consulted, stated he had no objection to the Committee using the Court-room. If the Governor had objected, the Committee would have met elsewhere. Only one witness was examined, J. HENRI BURCH, a colored Carterite. His statement took a wide range. The object of the Committee seems to be to hear a general statement from one member of each faction, in order to arrive at the points that require their attention. The statement telegraphed hence on the 11th inst. as to how the Legislature is made up, citing the Wheyland case, covers BURCH'S statement today regarding some half dozen members. BURCH will be called to-morrow.

UTAH.

The Admission Bill Vetoed—A Scene of Excitement in the House.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 29.—In the Council, today, the reading of the Governor's veto on the Admission bill was followed by groans and hisses. The members spoke of it with mingled anger and contempt. GEORGE Q. CANNON, the Apostle, said that the ignorance of the message is only equaled by its impudence; that if he had a boy twelve years old who could not write a better document, he would cuff his ears. A motion was made and adopted that the veto should not be spelled upon the minutes.

The morning papers are exceedingly bitter on the veto. The Council has appointed a committee to act with the House committee to prepare a joint resolution submitting to the people the matter of convening the Convention to draft a State Constitution, and to elect delegates. Also to petition Congress for the admission of the Territory. It is said that the United States Attorney will move, to-morrow, to admit all the prisoners held under process of the United States Court to bail.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

A child of JOHN HANEY was burned to death in Boston on Sunday evening.

The Presbyterian Church in Ludlow, Ky., was burned on Sunday. The loss is $10,000.

Senator MORTON lectured on "The National Idea" in New-Haven last evening.

Mr. ROBERTS was inaugurated as President of the Republic of Liberia on New-Year's Day.

the actual quantity of supplies made to some of the offices in various Departments of the City Government.

The present character of furniture in the City Hall and Department of Public Works, as compared with that supposed to have been furnished by INGERSOLL & Co., or as charged for by that famous firm, will be found interesting; as will, also, the enormous bills for stationery supplies, charged in the names of the Manufacturing Stationers' Company and ROGERS & Co., while all of the figures collated afford an insight into the nefarious practices of the Ring.

Several persons comparitively unknown to fame as City plunderers are, by the exposure of those astounding accounts, made to figure conspicuously in their real characters. An old acquaintance of the public—SMITH, the great awning-maker—reappears upon the scene with a little bill of over $8,000 for $12 50 awnings, furnished at the rate of $65 each; a startling item for repairs on City Hall flags, charged at $350; and $150 for a few ordinary flags furnished to the free floating baths. As Mr. SMITH has denied that he received any very considerable portion of the money credited to him in the County accounts, it is fair to presume that the bill which appears in his name is in part, if not in whole, a fraudulent statement.

The tables as herewith given are taken from the books and records of the Department of Public Works, and they are arranged in such a form as to show the repetition and subdivision of items contained in the vouchers.

MONDAY, Jan. 29—P. M.

The price of Gold touched 110 ℔ cent. today. The sales of the day were at 109⅞@110@109⅞@109⅞ ℔ cent. The speculation for the rise had a certain support from the Cable advices of lower figures for American Stocks in London, and the reported agitation of the Alabama claims by the London Times. On the other hand Exchange was abundant and lower on the basis of 109 ℔ cent. (net) for 60 days London, and 109⅛ ℔ cent. short sight, and the Cash Gold was easy with 5@6 ℔ cent. per annum Interest paid for carrying over balances.

Money was in good demand from the Brokers through the forenoon at 7 ℔ cent.; but the supply from lenders was easy, and some of them later in the day offered balances, on call, at 6 ℔ cent. At Bank the Mercantile demand is fairly active at 7 ℔ cent.

The Stock Exchange was lower in the forenoon in nearly all departments. The Public Funds went off ¼@½ per cent., but subsequently recovered the decline, on a free demand, at the later Boards. The Pacific Mortgages also closed steady, after a slight decline. The State Stocks were higher on Virginia Consolidated, but dull on other descriptions. The New-York and Western Railroads were indifferently supported through the day, and the inclination was to sell them at a concession from the prices at the close of last week, although the general list seems to yield with reluctance, and frequent fluctuations of ¼@½ per cent. occurred in the course of dealings. At 4 o'clock the market was on the recovery on part of the Western Roads. The sales of Pacific Mail were large at the decline of the forenoon, but the price subsequently showed some improvement.

The new and peremptory rule of the Stock Exchange to close at 5 P. M., went into operation today, and we are thus enabled to give the closing quotations, as at that hour, in place of waiting as heretofore on the irregular and often uncertain transactions later in the Afternoon in front of the Exchange Building, on Broad-street, after the shutting up of the Hall of the Exchange.

☞ NORTHERN PACIFIC BONDS

Have thirty years to run—payable, principal and interest, (7.30 per cent.,) in gold—exempt from United States tax—are a first and only mortgage on the road and its earnings, and upon 50,000,000 acres of timber, mineral and agricultural lands—equal in extent to all the New-England States and Maryland included.

The United States has made secure the payment of the bonds by this ample and unparalleled land grant.

The bonds are issued in denominations of $100 to $10,000, coupon and registered, and are offered by us at par and interest in currency.

All current securities received in exchange.

JAY COOKE & CO.

☞ ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY RAILROAD COMPANY'S FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND LAND GRANT BONDS,

BEARING EIGHT PER CENT. (8 p. c.) INTEREST, PAYABLE IN GOLD,

FREE OF TAX,

AND IN DENOMINATIONS OF $1,000, $500 AND $100, can be obtained from the undersigned, or through the principal banks and bankers throughout the United States.

The attractive features of these securities are recognized in the fact that, although they have been but a short time on the market, they are nearly all absorbed, and but a small amount are now for sale.

They combine a perfect security with a liberal rate of interest. This interest account is made light for, and easily borne by, the Company, through the operation of the Sinking Fund created from sales of the Company's land, which, in many cases, draw interest at the rate of ten (10) per cent. per annum. The security behind them is ample in every particular, as they constitute a first and only mortgage on a trunk line of railroad which will soon connect the City of St. Joseph, Mo., (an important railway centre,) with the Union Pacific Railroad at Fort Kearney, materially shortening the distance between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. In addition to this, the bonds have further security in the fact that there is included in the Mortgage the Company's magnificent Lands, amounting to 1,500,000 acres, known to be among the best in the United States. The Mortgage Indenture prohibits the sale of these Lands at less than Four (4) Dollars per acre, and payable to the Trustees under the Mortgage, for the clear and express purpose of retiring these Bonds. The amount thus realised exceeds the entire amount of Bonds which can be issued, and leaves the road, property and franchises free.

The Bonds have thirty years to run, with interest at Eight per Cent., free of tax, payable in February and August in each year.

Both principal and interest are payable in gold.

The principal in New-York. The interest in either New-York, London or Frankfort-on-the Main, at the option of the holder, without notice, and in the gold currency of the country in which they are presented. They are coupons or registered.

Trustees—Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

The present price of these Bonds is 97½ and accrued interest in currency, from Aug. 15, 1871. But they are receivable at par and accrued interest in payment for lands sold by the Company. The right is reserved to advance the present selling price without notice.

Maps, circulars, documents and full information furnished on application.

Though acting as agents for the sale of this loan, our firm buy and sell in their regular business the Bonds of the St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Company, those of the Eastern Division eight per cent. (8s.) recently placed by us at 97½, being now quoted at from 101½ to 102½ and accrued interest.

TANNER & CO.,
Bankers, No. 11 Wall-st.

☞ UNION PACIFIC BONDS.

The undersigned offer for sale, at the current market rates, the First Mortrage and Land Grant Bonds of this Company. The Union Pacific Railroad was completed and has been in successful operation since May 10, 1869, with average earnings of over eight millions per annum.

The First Mortgage Bonds, due 1896, bear the same rate of Interest as United States Five Twenties (six per cent. gold, free of tax;) they are a first lien upon the Road and its equipment.

The present cash value of the Income and Land Grant Bonds and Stock of the Union Pacific Company is over $20,000,000, all of which, as well as the $27,000,000 United States subsidy Bonds are subsequent to the First Mortgage Bonds.

The Land Grant Bonds are a first mortgage upon the remaining 11,599,858 71-100 acres of land belonging to the Company, the proceeds of all sales of which are solely applied to the redemption of the Land Grant Bonds. The total sales of land to Oct. 31, 1871, were 480,141 29-100 acres for $2,030,831 83, averaging $4 23 per acre. The net earnings for the first six months (of the third fiscal year,) ending Nov. 1, 1871, were $2,450,219 94—more than twice the amount of the interest upon the First Mortgage and Land Grant Bonds, and about three times the amount of the interest upon the First Mortgage Bonds. The annual interest upon the First Mortgage Bonds is $1,634,270 gold; the annual interest upon the remaining Land Grant Bonds is $650,320 currency.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ MIDLAND RAILROAD

FIRST MORTGAGE 7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS.

Limited to $20,000 per mile on finished road.

The rapid progress toward completion of this great trunk Line from New-York to the West and to Canada, enables us to offer to investors at par and interest a further limited issue of these favorite securities.

Upward of 340 miles of this road, including the New-Jersey section, are already finished, equipped, and in operation; and contracts with responsible parties have been made for its entire completion by the first day of July next. When this shall have been accomplished its earnings cannot fail to be large and highly remunerative, as it has advantages at least equal to those of any of its competitors for both local and through business. It is building for cash, of which nearly $8,000,000 have been furnished by subscription to its stock at PAR. The work is substantial, and, including equipment, has not exceeded in cost $50,000 per mile, which is less than one-third of the amount at which some of the trunk lines of roads leading from New-York are capitalized, and on which they are paying good dividends.

In view of these facts, the Midland First Mortgage Bonds must be regarded as a first-class security—quite as safe as Governments; and, by making the exchange at the present difference in price, holders of Midland Bonds will receive 33 per cent. more of revenue upon the amount invested than the holders of Government Bonds.

GEORGE OPDYKE & CO., No. 25 Nassau-st.

☞ WEST WISCONSIN LAND GRANT SINKING FUND SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS for sale at 91½ and interest in currency. Investors who wish a perfectly safe bond on a finished road can obtain full particulars by applying to WHITE, MORRIS & CO., No. 18 Wall-st., and GWYNNE, JOHNSON & DAY, No. 16 Wall-st.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court today delivered an opinion against what is known as the Drake amendment, which in effect prohibits the reception by the Court of Claims of evidence of amnesty and pardon on the part of suitors, but allows the opposite party to refer to such amnesty and pardon as evidence of disloyalty, unless at the time of receiving the pardon and amnesty, the recipient protested against the implication of previous disloyalty contained in the official document. The Court adverted to the proclamation of LINCOLN of 1863, which granted amnesty and pardon on condition of taking the oath, &c., with the restoration of property excepting in slaves. The Court asserts the full power of the President as to granting pardon and amnesty, to the acceptance of which cannot, it says, be rendered of no effect by the legislation of Congress.

☞ The Jumel Ejectment Suit.

The Jumel ejectment suit was resumed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court. ALFRED E. BAKER, of this City, testified that in May, 1859, he was Fire Marshal of this City; that a barn on Mme. JUMEL'S estate, and contiguous to her residence, was burned; that he investigated the circumstances of the affair, and had two interviews with Mme. JUMEL in relation to it. She was very garrulous on each occasion, and said she thought Mr. CHASE or Mr. PERRY had set the place on fire to drive her out, and that she would send for her son, and have him clear them all out; she was in a scolding temper, and abused CHASE and PERRY and all hands around. DAVID WILLIAMS, formerly a gardener to Mme. JUMEL, testified that she had once inquired of him concerning his family, and remarked that she had a dear boy of her own. Both these witnesses were subjected to a searching cross-examination by Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR.

The New-York Times.

The utmost care will be devoted to gathering political news from special sources during the Presidential canvass. This department of the paper will be unusually full and trustworthy. Renewed enterprise will be exhibited in every department of the paper, and large space will be devoted to reports of speeches made during elections, or on other important political occasions.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

The Erie Railway Ring has concluded an arrangement to lease two more connecting roads, the Southern Central, running from Oswego to Fair-Haven on Lake Ontario, and a road running from Goshen, Orange County to the New-Jersey State line. Our correspondent points out that the former road will open up certain coal mines in which the Erie Railway is interested. One of the most prolific sources of fraud in the management of Erie, has been the employment of the road to carry at nominal rates the produce of the private enterprises of the Ring Directors. This has the double advantage of helping them to increase their gains and keeping down the receipts of the road, for which, some day or other—as BARNARD is not immortal, and even TWEED has been shown to lack omnipotence—the rascals knew they might have to account. In the meantime, we cannot but admire the child-like innocence of the managers of the small roads in trusting their prosperity in the hands of the Erie men. They have probably forgotten the famous case of the Atlantic and Great Western, in which the Ring first leased the road and then got an injunction from CARDOZO'S mill, forbidding payment of the consideration or any suit to compel payment.

Great Cry and Little Wool.

Our readers will admit that it is not a very cheerful thing to hear, at this time of day, that W. M. TWEED, a notorious thief, intends to go to Albany and take his seat in the Senate, and that six Republican Senators whom he has bribed intend to support him in this course. We have, as we promised we would, faithfully kept the public informed of the progress of events at Albany, and it has not fallen to our lot to say much of an encouraging character. In the election of an honest Speaker the session began well, but beyond that we cannot point to a single proceeding which can be regarded as satisfactory. The "Fentonites" are angry, and say they will not help to carry out any reforms while they are deprived of "their share" of Federal patronage. Seeing these things, the hopes of the Tammany gang—shattered and dispersed as they were—begin to revive. TWEED has been hiding round the corner until now, when he thinks it safe to show himself again, and even to return to his seat in the Senate.

Nor is this all. The world has stood amazed at the disclosures of the Ring frauds, and rejoiced over the result of the election last November. It was regarded by everybody as a fresh vindication of the principle of popular government. But, of course, everybody supposed that the men whose guilt had been universally acknowledged would be speedily brought to punishment. No principle was fully vindicated until that consummation had been reached. But weeks, and even months, have gone by, and, nobody has been brought within the reach of the law. TWEED and his friends have been subjected to a little temporary inconvenience. HALL has never been disturbed. The Legislature might have removed him from the Mayoralty three weeks ago. But it has done nothing—nobody has done anything. Judge BEDFORD'S Grand Jury has tried to get at the thieves, but it is no great secret that every kind of obstacle is thrown in its way by "eminent lawyers." In particular, Mr. CHARLES O'CONOR—we record it with pain, but nevertheless as an undeniable fact—is now fully determined to shield TWEED and all his friends from punishment. He has advised certain men in the Legislature that they cannot legally remove HALL. In the same way, he is using all his influence to prevent indictments from being brought against any member of the old Ring. Explain this conduct of Mr. O'CONOR'S how you will, or attribute it to what motives you may, it will be found impossible to disprove our statement regarding Mr. O'CONOR'S policy. His efforts to screen HALL have been very persevering from the first. Our Republican lawyers—unfortunately, as we have always thought—placed themselves unreservedly in Mr. O'CONOR'S hands. We have taken the liberty once or twice of cautioning them against allowing themselves to be guided entirely by a gentleman whose first desire is to save the Democratic Party from further injury. But Mr. O'CONOR has had everything his own way—and every child may now see to what a pretty pass he has brought us.

That HALL should quietly retain the office he has so scandalously abused—that TWEED should claim his seat in the Senate, in the face of the new exposures of his frauds which we publish today from the records of his own office—that the Tammany Ring should be calculating confidently on an early restoration to power—these are results upon which none of our readers can look with unconcern. We had hoped, and still hope—though not very confidently—that the Legislature may be induced to come to the relief of the people. The only measure which could help us much now would be a new charter. We are told that Mr. ALVORD and his friends will gladly support a measure likely to be satisfactory to our citizens. We shall see how that is by and by. At present the Legislature has done nothing but disappoint the people. We do not say this by way of attacking it—we merely state a fact. If the Legislature does not like this representation of its conduct, it can soon give us good cause to change it. As for the Grand Jury, it can surely follow its own counsels, and disregard the lawyers. Or, if it feels unable to take any decided course, it can at least clear itself from blame by frankly explaining to the public the difficulties which have beset it. It cannot afford to break up now without doing something. The prospect altogether is not encouraging, but it is not too late to hope that it will mend.

Gleanings from the Department of Public Works.

We present this morning a fresh batch of figures culled from the City accounts. These form a portion of the result of the investigation now being made by the Committee of Seventy into the records of the Department of Public Works. If anybody imagined that TWEED was contented with the spoils to be gathered from Court-house accounts, and his share of the plunder of the New-York Printing Company and Transcript Association, a glance at the figures on our second page will speedily undeceive him. Here are the old familiar names of the Ring tradesmen, Ingersoll, Miller, Garvey, Keyser, and Smith, attended by lesser celebrities like HALL, Jr., BERRIEN and MARRENER, and with a huge slice of the spoils coming under the name of TWEED'S Manufacturing Stationery Company, managed by the versatile WILBOUR and CORSON. TWEED built up the present Department of Public Works, and hedged it round with legislative enactments for his personal profit. It had the spending of at least two millions a year, and, during 1871, it spent so liberally that its deficiencies (provided for in the Twombly bill) amount to about a million more. The period covered by the accounts elsewhere given, is, nominally, two years, but the greater portion of the sums detailed was spent during eighteen months beginning March, 1870, and ending September, 1871. The accounts belong to a single bureau—that of Supplies—of the Department of Public Works. They show, among other things, that TWEED was equally ready to make money out of exorbitant charges for spittoons and scrub-brushes as from carpets, chairs, plaster-work and Croton pipes! The "Boss" had no weak scruples about the source of his plunder, holding in equal esteem transactions that border on petty larceny and strokes of swindling which approach the sublime.

As illustrations of the fat pickings, represented by our figures of today, take the following:

INGERSOLL'S bill contains in all some 3,742 yards of carpeting for various offices, charged uniformly at $4 a yard. Diligent inquiry into the value of the carpets in the District Courts, the Council Chambers, and elsewhere, shows that on the most liberal estimate they would have been dear at $1 50 a yard. Carpets which cost the City $14,968 in all, are thus found to be worth only $5,563. Net sum for private distribution, $9,405. On the oil-cloth and matting in this account, the "steal" is equally palpable, both being charged, with a solitary exception, at $4 a yard, when $1 25 is their outside value. On the modest quantity of 807 yards there will thus be found to be a surplus of plunder of $1,219 25. On the total of $107,888 in this account, we may, therefore, reasonably infer that two-thirds, or $72,000, was stolen.

J. W. SMITH figures for 82 awnings, between July 5 and 16, 1870, charged, of course, at the old figure of $65 each. As experts have declared these to be worth only $29 50 each, there has, in nine days a trifle of $4,815 accrued for behoof of those interested.

The amount of paper, blank-books, printed forms, &c., used up by the Department of Public Works is astounding. Take the month of May, 1871, as an example. The rush upon these simple requisites, "envelopes, paper, pens, ink and mucilage" is wonderful to contemplate. The Department was in the market for cart-loads of these articles every day from the 1st to the 27th of May, Sundays excepted, and contrived to spend upon them during these four weeks $10,691 60! This, be it noted, is in the face of continuous monthly accounts during the remainder of the year, and during the year preceding.

The Department bought brooms, brushes, dusters and mats in the most bewildering profusion. One DANIEL BERRIEN, who appears to deal in everything, from a crow-bar to a scrub-brush, supplies the Department in January, 1871, with $7,156 worth of dusters, brooms and mats; in February to the amount of $2,888, and in March with brushes and brooms amounting to $4,981, or in all, $14,970. For three months of furnishing of this kind, this is not amiss, but BERRIEN'S trade is excelled by that done in the previous years by EDWARD MARRENER. During six weeks, from April 18 to May 30, 1870, MARRENER contrived to supply the Department with "mats, brooms, spittoons and water-coolers," to the amount of $26,757. The entries for MARRENER'S accounts elude analysis by a liberal use of the indefinite "&c.," and a careful avoidance of details. BERRIEN'S are a little better defined. Take the item for 174 mats and 12 dozen towels set down at the extraordinary figure of $2,955 35. If any one can find in the Department of Public Works, or in any of the other City offices, a door mat worth $5 we shall be glad to hear of it, and we hold it to be in the last degree improbable that the hands of City officials are dried with towels worth more than $6 a dozen. At this rate, the mats reach a total of $870 and the towels figure up to $72—$942 in all—showing the "rake" on this little bill to be over $2,000.

The entire accounts given represent a total of about $1,666,253. Can anybody doubt after the explanations given, that they represent fully $1,000,000 stolen from the taxpayers?

Daniel Sheehan and the Tribune.

If there ever was a doubt in the mind of any unprejudiced intelligent man as to the spirit in which the Tribune and its faction have been doing their work for the last few months, and, in particular, as to the motives of their assaults on Gen. GRANT'S Administration in connection with the Custom-house and the civil service generally, those doubts were dispelled by a paragraph in that paper yesterday morning. The Tribune had taken up the case of Mr. SHEEHAN, an inspector, who had gone about his work seeing double—a very bad and confusing style of vision for an inspector of anything, especially of Custom-house affairs. Now, Mr. SHEEHAN, qua SHEEHAN, was nothing to the Tribune; but SHEEHAN was a disappointed office-seeker, and the Tribune was bound to him body and soul. Moreover, SHEEHAN, in his inspecting, saw things that could not be seen, and saw them double; saw twice as many of them as there could have been under any circumstances—say in the dryest times; and he became the hero of the hour, and the Tribune inscribed upon its banner, "SHEEHAN, GREELEY and Victory! and down with GRANT and MURPHY, and the base and bloated monopolists of Custom-house patronage!" The Tribune's object was to show, not how the civil service was degraded and the public wronged by the appointment of dishonest, incompetent, and muddle-headed men to office, but that the Custom-house patronage (most wonderful and heretofore unheard of!) was used by the party in power to establish itself more firmly. Whereupon, Mr. SHEEHAN'S case became the great case of the day, in the Tribune's eyes. And justly, too; for was not here a man who would go into Court and swear, and bring other men to swear, that he had been compelled by Collector MURPHY to pay two per cent. of his salary to the building up of Gen. GRANT, and the discomfiture of his enemies? This was just the point to be established; the case was a beautiful one; nothing could be lovelier. To be sure, it would be manifest to any reasonable creature that a Collector who could write and set up such a notice as the one in question must be a born fool; and the Tribune has not taken that view of Mr. MURPHY'S character; and just as surely it would have occurred to a competent editor who meant to do his duty by the public, to make some inquiry about the matter, which could have been made by a reporter in half an hour. But no: the Tribune did not wish to lay the truth before the public, but to injure Gen. GRANT through Mr. MURPHY; and so it takes up the double-seeing inspector's story, and repeats it day after day.

At last the disappointed ex-inspector's superior officer is called before the Senate's Committee, and there, upon oath, he, in whose office the notice was alleged to have been set up, declares that there was no such notice, no such exaction; and what does the Tribune do? Apologize? retract? make a correction in the curtest and most formal manner? Nothing of the kind. It does not even cease for a day its slanderous attacks, but renews them with aggravated malice. It accuses the Surveyor of perjury, just avoiding that form of words which would subject it to a suit for libel. Now the Surveyor, Mr. ALONZO CORNELL, is a gentleman of character and worth, a man who is entitled to respectful treatment even from an antagonist. He is the son of the founder of Cornell University, who surely should not be needlessly wounded through his son for mere spite and malice. But what of that? The Surveyor is "Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee," and is not that enough? What can the miscreant who sat in that chair deserve at the hands of a political Dogberry, but that he should "suffer salvation, body and soul!" And hereupon the Tribune not only orders up Mr. Surveyor CORNELL for punishment, but it bullies the Court in which Mr. SHEEHAN has had the effrontery to bring a suit for the money he contributed, and it cracks its whip over the heads of the Senate Committee. It cries:

"This is a matter of evidence easily obtained, and certain to be speedily brought out—if not before the Custom-house Committee, then soon after in the suit for the recovery of political assessments illegally exacted. When that suit comes on again, we shall see whether a New-York Court will again adjourn a case that Mr. DEOOT BLISS, Jr., may be permitted to return to his 'important case' of intermeddling with the work of the Senate Committee and trying to defeat honest investigation. A more shameless and impertinent abuse was never tolerated—whether we consider the Court or the Committee."

Well, the suit did come on again, the evidence was obtained, "honest investigation" was not defeated; and where were Mr. SHEEHAN and the Tribune? Hoist with their own petard; blown at the moon; just where they were told two days before that they would find themselves. This was on Saturday. The Tribune, in the purity and piety of its course, publishes no paper on Sunday; but the case was fully reported in the TIMES and in other papers, and the world knew that it had been ignominously dismissed, not before it had been proved that no such notice, (for the issuing of which the Tribune had reviled Mr. MURPHY, and for denying the existence of which it had accused Mr. CORNELL of perjury,) had ever been put up in the Custom-house or issued by the Collector. Many eyes were turned quickly on Monday morning to the fourth page of the Tribune to see the course it would take under these circumstances. Even its opponents hoped for the sake of honorable, we must say honest, journalism, that there would be a clear and positive, even if merely formal, retraction of the charge against Mr. MURPHY, and particularly of that against Mr. CORNELL. And of this there was not one word! Not one. The proceedings in Court were reported; but in the comment upon them it was said that "the suit was dismissed because it was proved that SHEEHAN paid voluntarily, and that Mr. CORNELL did not put a pistol to Mr. SHEEHAN'S ear and demand his money or his life." That is not true. The case was dismissed because it was shown that there was no such notice, no such demand, no such exaction as that upon which SHEEHAN brought his suit. But of this the Tribune, which editorially charged Mr. MURPHY with extortion and Mr. CORNELL with perjury, says editorially nothing; not one word of apology or even of retraction.

The Tribune is short-sighted. It has lost an opportunity. It might, by a manly and honest word, confessing the error into which it had been led by this unsteady ex-inspector, have established a little nucleus of good character, round which more might have gathered hereafter; it might have caused some people to believe that its present purposes were as honest as some of its past have been. But it chose to fling this opportunity away, and to make what was a proper occasion of reparation one of further abuse and misrepresentation. It has thus revealed, beyond the possibility of misapprehension, the insincerity of its professions and the recklessness of its hate. It seeks not truth or the public good; but only to gain its own ends and those of its faction, by slandering the character of its opponents.

The Cincinnati Convention.

A vigorous attempt is being made to exaggerate the significance of the bolting scheme in Missouri, which has usurped the name of "Liberal Republican." This attempt is absurd, on account of the feeble basis of fact on which it rests; and it deserves comment only from the standing of those who are engaged in it, and from their evident purpose to mislead the people with reference to the next Presidential election. Among those who are lending their influence to magnify the Missouri movement is HORACE GREELEY, who makes it the occasion of an angry article with reference to the Administration. He says that a "large portion" of "the thirty or forty thousand Republicans who voted the Liberal ticket in Missouri in 1870 were present or represented in the Convention at Jefferson City last week." This statement contains so many instances of misrepresentation that if it bore against Mr. GREELEY'S chances for the Presidential nomination, we have no doubt that his paper would denounce its author as a deliberate falsifier. In the first place, there were not thirty or forty thousand Republicans in Missouri who voted the Liberal ticket in 1870, as any one can see for himself by consulting the figures given in the column of the journal containing this loose assertion. The heaviest Republican vote ever cast in Missouri was cast for GRANT in 1868, and is given by Mr. GREELEY at 85,671. The regular Republican vote in 1870 was, according to the same authority, 62,854, a reduction of only 22,817. This reduction includes every Republican vote which was given to GRATZ BROWN in 1870 on the Liberal ticket, and it falls from seven to seventeen thousand short of Mr. GREELEY'S statement. In the next place, the Convention at Jefferson City was not a representative assemblage, and no one there pretended to represent any constituency whatever. And finally, the total attendance at that Convention, from Missouri, was, according to the roll call published in the St. Louis Republican—the organ of the Liberals—only one hundred and thirty-two, to which Mr. GREELEY may add for his comfort the names of Mr. SCOVILLE and Mr. WILDE, of New-Jersey. Is it not a palpable absurdity to speak of such a convention as one whose proceedings should, of themselves, seriously affect the policy of the National Administration?

But Mr. GREELEY is not content with overstating the strength of the Missouri Liberal movement in 1870, or with magnifying the proportions of the Jefferson City Convention. He goes further, and totally misrepresents the action of that Convention. He says it "called a Mass National Convention of Liberal Republicans to meet at Cincinnati on the 6th of May next, and nominate candidates for President and Vice-President." This is precisely what the Jefferson City Convention did not do. It expressly refrained from mentioning the nomination of candidates in its call for a National Convention, which reads as follows:

"We therefore invite all Republicans who desire the reforms herein set forth, to meet in National Mass Convention at the City of Cincinnati, on the first Wednesday of May next, at 12 o'clock, there to take such action as our convictions of duty and the public exigency may require."

It is undoubtedly the purpose of the Cincinnati Convention, if it ever meets, to do what it can to defeat Gen. GRANT'S renomination; but its promoters are by no means ready, as yet, to commit themselves to the nomination of another candidate. They would prefer to fire their guns like the sportsman Mr. GREELEY once told about, who aimed to kill his game if it was a deer, but to miss it if it proved to be a calf. They will name some one else, if they think that will destroy Gen. GRANT'S prospects; they will omit the nomination if they think the Regular Convention can be made to serve their ends. Whatever forlorn hope of gratifying his cherished ambition Mr. GREELEY may have rested on, the action of this hypothetical Convention must, therefore, be tempered by attention to two facts: it may never meet, and it may not suit its managers to name him or any one else for the Presidency if it should meet.

Mr. GREELEY, however, thinks the Cincinnati Convention a very important element in the calculations of the coming campaign. "Men and brethren!" he cries, "a new leaf must be turned over, or there are breakers ahead. The proposed Cincinnati Convention may prove a fiasco, or it may name the next President. If you desire the latter, you may well pray that ROSCOE CONKLING & Co. shall have the running of the Grant machine for a few months longer."

This threat would be ridiculous if it were not a little scandalous. For Mr. GREELEY to make misstatements which are sure to be exposed, for the purpose of frightening the Administration into taking the "running of the Grant machine" out of the hands of "CONKLING & Co.," with the plain inference that it must be given to FENTON, GREELEY & Co., is certainly not a dignified thing. But neither is it an honorable thing. Mr. GREELEY has made no secret of the fact that his vociferous complaints about the New-York Custom-house were based on the failure to give the Fenton clique the patronage they sought. Here is now a very plain confession that a similar grudge sways his course on the Presidential nomination. It is not a pleasant sight to see a man like HORACE GREELEY putting up his hard-earned influence to be bid for, with an intimation that a proposition to give the control of a political "machine" to the corrupt Fenton crew would purchase it.

An Unfortunate Clergyman.

A young minister—said by some journals to be of the Baptist persuasion, but whose regular connection with the sect is denied by others—has been committed to jail in Cincinnati for robbery. His name is STEPHEN MORGAN, his birthplace Wales, and he has been in this country two years. By his own account he has been preaching for seven years, and is a licensed, but not ordained, minister of the Baptist Church. For five months previous to his arrest, Mr. MORGAN had been acting as pastor to a small church at a place called Cheviot, not far from Cincinatti. At the same time he was studying theology with the pastor of the First Baptist Church in the latter city. When apprehended by the officers, Mr. MORGAN was preparing his sermon for the following Sunday, and the evidences of the act he is charged with having committed were found around him. The accusation is that of purloining a considerable number of valuable books from the Theological Library of Cincinnati; and it seems certain that the volumes were taken by MORGAN to be used in the prosecution of his religious studies. It appears that he is very ambitious and very poor. He was in the habit of frequenting the library to read books on the premises. Many of the works abstracted are rare, and the rule is that they shall not be taken away. By his own confession, MORGAN felt the need of these volumes, could not afford to buy them, yielded at last to an irresistible temptation, and stole them from the library.

The case is a painful and singular one. If a man steals money or goods, the motive is, in general, one of unmixed selfishness and unmixed wrong to society. There is little difficulty here in fixing responsibility, and measuring punishment. If a man steals bread for his starving child, the matter becomes more complicated. It is hard to say that the harm done to society outweighs the good done to the individual. The case of MORGAN is still more puzzling. So far as we can judge from the data before us, he appears to be a person of earnest convictions, among which stands foremost the belief that he was truly called to his divine work. What are we to say of a man who, believing himself destined, under Providence, to save souls, goes about pilfering the sources of knowledge that shall enable him to do so? If he took a horse or a jewel, our way would be clear enough; but in the abstraction, with the indicated motives, of WAYLAND'S Elements, of BARNES', BEECHER'S, and NEWMAN HALL'S Sermons, of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, or of A Complete Analysis of the Holy Bible, to be placed in the same category? Of course, in one and the most obvious point of view, it must. Theft is theft, and has its recognized odium and its prescribed penalties; yet, surely, the measure of both is instinctively modified by our sense of justice, whatever may be done by the formalities of the law; and although, as already suggested, a clergyman, more than most men, should be armed against doing evil that good may come, the question becomes curiously involved when, as urged by the culprit in this instance, the alternative lay in remaining totally devoid of the means of doing good at all.

At the time his practice was discovered, Mr. MORGAN had collected the nucleus of quite a respectable theological library. His taste led him to seek with eagerness the latest disquisitions on his favorite topics, as well as the expensive standard works, and these were taken one by one from the library as convenience and the absence of probable observers served. The culprit declares that he meant to replace the books, and it is charitable to suppose that this was indeed his intention. It seems, however, that he pasted leaves over some of the library marks and tore out others, and this will tell against him. He says this was done merely to save the annoyance of questions from people visiting his study, and seeing where so many of the books came from. The thefts began last August, and continued up to last week. Some time before, the officers of the library had their suspicions excited, and the offender was brought to light by detectives. Mr. MORGAN declined to employ counsel, saying that he would tell the Court the whole truth, and throw himself upon its mercy. He added that the affair would totally ruin him, as no future good conduct could entirely blot it out, and that the dearest hope of his life was thus forever blasted. Inasmuch as there can be little doubt of the truth of this, and as all the stolen property has been recovered, it is, perhaps, not injudicious to hope that the Court will be lenient to this poor, lost man, and err, if it errs at all, on the side of charity. MORGAN should have come to New-York, where he might have stolen millions of money with entire impunity—that is, if he had been a Democrat.

MINOR TOPICS.

After much debate, the Senate finally fixed on a date for early adjournment, but the House, which, it was confidently expected, would concur, has consigned the resolution to the pigeon-holes of a standing committee. This action was sustained by the Democratic vote, and a large proportion of the Republican vote. We believe the interests of the country would have been served by the determination of Congress to adjourn at an early day, but we do not agree with the feeling, too commonly indulged, that the session of Congress is something unfortunate in itself and to be got rid of as soon as possible. That feeling is fostered by a habit of careless and contemptuous reference to the legislative body. Doubtless Congress does many foolish and some bad things, but it is in fact, as in theory, the representative of the nation. Its indecision and procrastination grow out of conditions imposed by the people at large—out of the conflict of views generally entertained, and from pressure of contrary interests actually existing in the country. Tedious as the deliberations of our national Legislature often are, it is much better so than that its action should be hasty. Our people are too much inclined to separate Congress from its vast and varied constituency. It is easy to deride it, but it is not altogether wise to do so, and remembering that it is an essential and the most valuable part of our free institutions, it seems that the people may well have patience with a body whose faults are mainly the faults of the people, and whose office is a most important element in the process of self-government.

In an opinion delivered by the Chief-Justice, yesterday, and concurred in, as to the constitutional questions raised, by the other Justices, the Supreme Court laid down an important principle. It is that Congress having given jurisdiction to that Court over certain actions—in this case over actions brought up on appeal from the Court of Claims—cannot prescribe the rules under which that jurisdiction shall be exercised. Congress has enacted that the proclamation of President LINCOLN in December, 1863, offering pardon, with reservation of all rights of property, to those who, having taken part in the rebellion, were prepared to take certain oaths of loyalty, should not be presented as evidence of loyalty on which property abandoned to the United States could be claimed. The Supreme Court holds that in this Congress has passed the line which separates the field of activity of the Legislative and the Judiciary. It has been evident, in many instances, that Congress has, since the commencement of its legislation, with reference to the war, encroached very considerably upon those limits which were previously accepted as dividing its powers from those of the Judiciary and the Executive. The opinion of the Supreme Court to which we allude, is a direct and frank attempt to oppose this tendency. We believe it to be wise in spirit, and in a general way necessary; though the report we have of the opinion does not give the immediate case very clearly. It will be an interesting question how this action of the Court will be regarded in Congress, or whether any action will be had with reference to it. The matter is the more interesting from the fact that Judge DRAKE, who, as a Senator, proposed the law now adjudicated on, is at present on the bench of the Court of Claims.

An officer of internal revenue in Maryland recently had his judicial ability put to a very severe test. He was called upon to decide whether a mass said for the repose of the soul of a deceased person had any commercial value. The case came before him in this way: Certain Roman Catholic priests, residents of the State, whose Church had received a handsome bequest for chanting a solemn high mass, to assist the soul of the bequeather out of "purgatory," endeavored to evade the law which exacts a percentage on the value of all lands conveyed without adequate consideration. On behalf of the Church, it was held that the services rendered to a soul under such circumstances were worth very much more than had been given for them; but the officer, who appears to have been imbued with a little of the old time Puritan spirit, refused to be convinced that masses had a money value even when said for the living, much less for the dead, whose souls, according to his view, are above and beyond the influence of books and candles. The decision, as may be supposed, has been received with much disfavor by the Roman Catholic clergy, and, as matters now stand, they are not likely to be satisfied without going through the formality of an appeal to Mr. Secretary BOUTWELL.

A new phase of the now celebrated Caldwell will case has lately been developed by the discovery of three or four witnesses whose testimony, if not impugned, will have a tendency to prove that the deceased CALDWELL had a passion for changing his "last will and testament," which amounted to a monomania. He was a native of Ohio, but, by some means, contrived to wander to New-Orleans, where, although the sole proprietor of a fortune amounting to between two and three hundred thousand dollars, he died in one of the wards of a charitable institution. Then came the fight over his wealth. An only brother, Dr. SAMUEL CALDWELL, had a will admitted to probate in 1870, dated 1841, which left him all the property, and he was proceeding to administer by virtue of it when the heirs of deceased's brothers and sisters, upon the representation that another will had been executed in 1853, had the probate of the first will set aside, and a decision rendered giving to all the claimants an equal right to participate in the estate. The testimony of the new witnesses, although rather contradictory in some essentials, as a whole goes to prove that the last will of all was written in the handwriting of the deceased himself, and, with the exception of a few trifling legacies, bequeathed the bulk of the property to Dr. CALDWELL. The other claimants charge the doctor with having stolen the will under which they were to have a share of the estate; and, as they propose to produce a number of witnesses to disprove the greater part of what he has proved, the probability is that the case may not be brought to a final issue during the present year.

There is a memorable passage in FORD'S admirable Handbook of Spain in which he urges those who intend to explore the Peninsula to lose no time, inasmuch as the quaint national attire and curious distinctive customs were rapidly fading away before the march of civilization and the incarnation of commonplace. Since FORD wrote, the changes he anticipated have taken place, and Spain is to the stroller in search of the picturesque far different to the Spain of other days. Almost all the world, in fact, has of late been levelling up to the prosaic standard of chimney-pot hat and Parisian bonnet, but there yet remained one remote perfectly unique corner of earth which did not disappoint even the most blasé. That too, is, we fear, gone. A telegram arrived a few days ago to the effect that the Japanese young ladies at San Francisco have ordered costly American outfits, and do not intend appearing in their national costume after leaving the shores of the Pacific. Let those who want to see the Japan of the Japanese make haste. In five years or so the streets of Jeddo will be as common-place as those of New-York. Undoubtedly one of the features which made travel in bygone days so fascinating has nearly perished. Mankind is becoming, externally at least, all of one pattern in dress and customs.

All New-Yorkers are familiar with the various devices of drink-sellers to allure such of their male customers into "nipping" as might hesitate to enter public bar-rooms. Those who cater for ladies are not behind-hand in this respect. We observe a chemist's advertisement running thus: "A full supply of fine cognac, pints and half pints, put up expressly for medicinal purposes." The world has heard much of late of the prevalence of a love for drink among women; we can imagine no more dangerous pandering to the vice than this advertisement indicates.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

GERMAN OPERA AT THE STADT.

MARSCHNER'S opera of "The Templar and the Jewess," which has been familiar to German audiences for many years, but which, until yesterday, was unknown in the United States, was sung last evening at the Stadt Theatre. It is a thoroughly interesting work, and bears no more apparent traces of age than "Der Freyschuetz," which preceded it by a brief space of time only. MARSCHNER'S music, in fact, has many traits of resemblance to WEBER'S. The overture, in its scope and form, reminds one strongly of those masterpieces of dramatic writing for the orchestra, the performance of which prefaces the unfolding of the stories of "Oberon," "Euryanthe" and "Der Freyschuetz." The composer, however, is at no stage of his task so happily inspired as his model. The same similarity of manner is discernible in the subsequent incidents. There are few remarkable melodic ideas in "The Templar and the Jewess," but there are several striking solos, and several choruses deficient neither in fluency nor vigor, and there is an abundance of clever accompaniment to dialogue rarely endowed with the charm of pure cantabile, but without the tameness of poor Italian "fillings-up," or the heaviness with which scientific musicians of the present weigh down their recitative. The room needed for a complete review of MARSCHER'S opera is at present denied us, and the single hearing of yesterday would, in any event, be insufficient for a satisfying discharge of the critical duty. For the edification of the reader, the salient points of a representation he can enjoy Wednesday, may, however, be mentioned. The libretto, as has no doubt been inferred from the title, deals with a subject handled already by Sir WALTER SCOTT, and affords opportunities for varied music, and for a scenic display almost suited to a spectacle. A song by Friar Tuck, in which the monkish partiality for good cheer and worldly pleasures finds expression in phrases alternating with a devout Ora pro nobis! is the first notable solo, and is conspicuous mainly for the felicity of the instrumentation. The same theme is afterward worked with admirable art into a martial chorus, sung by warriors whom the monk leads to battle. A long duet for Sir Brian and Rebecca is tuneful in parts, but its coloring must lack vividness, until a more powerful voice than Mme. FABBRI'S is had for its interpretation. Another duet for Ivanhoe and Rebecca is heard soon after, and an animated finale, during which a combat goes on in the courtyard of the castle, ends the act. The second opens with a melodious but rather commonplace chorus, illustrative of the delights of morn in the woods, and the same motive serves as a romance for Lady Rowena. The discovery of King Richard by his knights results in some additional bars of strong music. A soliloquy by Sir Brian is possessed of considerable beauty of a sweet and sad cast, and could be made more impressive than it is by an elegance of phrasing we cannot detect in Herr MULLER'S style. In the following scene, wherein Rebecca is accused of witchcraft, some enchanting strains mingle with the stern declamation of the Templars. The air by which "The Templar and the Jewess" is best known is placed in the third act, and assigned to Ivanhoe. "Thou Stately England" is its burden. Herr BERNARD, who is not always deserving of praise, sang this number of the score, last evening, with exceeding spirit and force. The theme is simple, but the rhythm is one to which an army might advance to strife, and its resumption by the choral masses is actually thrilling. The appearance of Ivanhoe at the decisive moment prefaces the finale, which is in keeping with the interesting character of the whole opera. The foregoing notes will, of course, be accepted as an incomplete statement of the impressions of a rehearsal that closed at a very late hour. Besides the artists whose names are supplied above, Herr KARL FORMES is to be remembered as an excellent representative of Friar Tuck, Herr HABELMANN as a worthy personator of the court-fool, Wamba, and Miss ROSETTI as an acceptable Lady Rowena. Herr WILHELM FORMES was King Richard. Herr MULDER'S orchestra was in better condition than heretofore; but for the comparative inefficiency of the horns in the overture, its share of the representation would have given us no chance for fault-finding.

EDWARD S. STOKES.

A Motion Made Before Judge Ingraham to Quash the Indictment.

Affidavits of Stokes and Arguments of Counsel in Support of the Motion—The Legality of the Indictment Question—Decision Reserved.

Pursuant to adjournment, EDWARD S. STOKES yesterday appeared in the Court of Oyer and Terminer to plead to an indictment for the murder of JAMES FISK, JR. The several adjournments which had taken place in putting in the prisoner's plea, and the various surmises which had been indulged in as to the nature of the plea to be entered by the prisoner's counsel, tended to excite public expectation and draw together at the opening of the Court yesterday, a large and curious crowd. Owing to the instructions of the Sheriff, however, a large portion of the crowd was excluded, and the prisoner was brought in almost unnoticed by those in waiting. On behalf of Mr. STOKES appeared his counsel already announced, Mr. JOHN GRAHAM, Mr. JOHN MCKEON, Mr. ELDRIDGE T. GERRY, and Messrs. WILLARD BARTLETT and WILLARD O. BARTLETT, while the people were represented by District-Attorney GARVIN, and Assistant District Attorneys SULLIVAN and FELLOWS. A large number of the representatives of the Bar was present, and during some of Mr. GRAHAM's criticisms on Ex-Judge FULLERTON's conduct in having appeared among the prosecutors of Mr. STOKES after having been once his counsel, created considerable commotion in Court, which was promptly suppressed by the officers.

Mr. STOKES presented nothing remarkable in his appearance; indeed, with the exception of an anxious and serious look during certain portions of the argument, and an occasional whisper to his counsel, Mr. MCKEAN, during the argument of District-Attorney GARVIN, the prisoner presented little indications of change from what he was when sitting in Court during the litigations between himself and the deceased which preceded the fatal act for which he is about to be tried.

Judge INGRAHAM having taken his seat on the bench, and the formal motion having been made by the District-Attorney that the prisoner be called upon to plead, Mr. GRAHAM arose, and addressing the Court, said that formal notice had been given to the District-Attorney that a motion would be made then to quash the indictment, with which motion he was prepared to proceed.

Mr. GRAHAM then read the affidavit of EDWARD S. STOKES, to which he chiefly referred in his subsequent argument. The affidavit is as follows:

STOKES' AFFIDAVIT.

CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK, ss.—EDWARD S. STOKES, the defendant above named, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he has been indicted by two of his counsel. (Messrs. WM. O. BARTLETT and JOHN GRAHAM,) and verily believes, they called upon Coroner YOUNG, at his residence, No. 107 King-street, in the City of New-York, in the afternoon of the 7th inst., a few hours after the death of JAMES FISK, Jr., to ascertain when the inquest would be held upon his body; that they were politely received by the said Coroner, and severely reprimanded for intruding themselves upon him on a Sabbath afternoon, and that he immediately became very communicative to them as to the manner in which he intended to conduct the inquest; that he stated he had gone over the City Directory and himself selected the names of respected citizens or members of the community, from whom he proposed forming his jury, and that they need not be apprehensive with reference to their supposed incompatibility with either party, and their supposed fairness and disinterestedness; that he had himself no feeling in the matter, either way; that he meant to perform his duty impartially, and that he meant to get out the whole truth, no matter whom it affected: that this last expression he repeated and emphasized several times, sometimes using the words "all the truth," sometimes the words "all the facts," as seeming to desire to impress upon this deponent's said two counsel the conviction that this deponent should have the most complete justice done to him, by that investigation, giving them to understand that he intended to devote all the time to the investigation requisite to bring forward all the testimony which could by any possibility throw light upon the occurrence; that he stated that, when the Coroner's predecessor in the Coroner's office enjoyed a bad reputation, and that he had resolved from the start to perform his official duty solely under the guidance of his official oath; that he had been in several instances offered or given to understand that he could have money, but that the influences upon him were unavailing; that he was commencing to dilate upon his views or understanding of the law governing Coroner's juries, when he was checked by one of the said two counsel, who remarked to him that it would not be proper to extend the conversation further, and that whatever further was said or done by him, or to or with him, had better be in the regular course of legal proceedings, when all parties would be within the view and hearing of the public. And this deponent further saith that before the testimony was given before the Coroner's Jury on the afternoon of the 8th inst., one of this deponent's counsel addressed the Coroner, intending to urge upon him two matters preliminary, one of which, on account of the interruptions and the apparent unwillingness of the Coroner to listen to him, he was unable to suggest to the Coroner at all. That the two matters were: First, the propriety of exhausting all the evidence attainable as to the condition of the deceased at the very time he was shot, to place beyond all doubt the fact of whether the deceased was himself armed at that point of time or not; second, that the statutes did not require the Coroner to make a return of his proceedings to the Court before the first Monday of February next, which gave him an ample opportunity to proceed with the inquest in the most deliberate manner, enabling him to elicit the whole truth, as he had promised he would in the conversation of the previous afternoon above referred to; that the second of these matters was not alluded to at that stage of the proceedings, and for the reason already stated, as this deponent is informed by the counsel who addressed the Coroner, and as he verily believes, and this deponent further saith that the annexed schedule, marked "A," contains a report of the proceedings before the Coroner's Jury on the afternoon of the 8th and 9th inst., as taken from one of the daily newspapers published in the City of New-York, and that, so far as it goes, it appears to be substantially correct; and this deponent further saith that the annexed schedule, marked "B," contains the ante-mortem statement of JAMES FISK, Jr., claimed to have been taken on the afternoon of the 6th inst., with the verdict of the Coroner's Jury thereupon, as copied from one of the daily newspapers published in the City of New-York; and this deponent further saith that the annexed schedule, marked "C" contains a list of the names of the jurors selected for the inquest upon the dead body of the deceased, as copied from one of the daily newspapers published in the City of New-York, and announced as the names from which the final jury would be drawn. And this deponent further saith, that, from the manner in which the Coroner opened the close of the proceedings before the last-mentioned jury, his counsel indulged the hope that he would defer making a return of his proceedings to the Court of Trials until the first Monday of February, the 1st Monday of February next, the consideration having been strongly pressed upon him that, during the first stages of the public excitement, any undue haste would or might be regardedlas deferring in such a feeling, when sound legal policy dictated the contrary course.

And this deponent further saith that upon the final jury, as constituted, MANSELL B. FIELD was placed, whose name does not appear among the list of jurors set out in schedule C., and that this deponent has been informed, and verily believes, he came forward, almost at the last moment, voluntarily, and was put upon the jury at his own request.

And this deponent further saith that another of the jurors, Mr. JAMES R. EDWARDS, was a friend of the deceased, and had transacted business for him in his lifetime, as this deponent has been informed and believes; and that both he and Mr. FIELD (who is a lawyer) were active in the jury-room in trying to procure the most unfavorable verdict to this deponent they could, from their previous sympathies with the deceased, as this deponent has been informed and verily believes. That, as this deponent has been informed, and verily believes, a proposed verdict was secretly handed to one of the jurors or sent into the jury-room or prepared in advance by one of them and carried in by him, which, if adopted by them, would have incorporated into their finding the word "felonious," "premeditated," and "malice aforethought," or similar words of the most prejudicial character to this deponent. And that this was done with the knowledge and approval of the Coroner, notwithstanding the remonstrance of this deponent's counsel protesting that the facts placed before the jury were garbled, and not such as were within the power and control of the Coroner, if he really intended that the jury should have the whole truth.

And this deponent further saith that the indictment pending against him in this Court was, as he distinctly believes and charges, hurried through through the instrumentality of private counsel connected with the prosecution, nominally in behalf of the relatives of the deceased, but in reality representing other parties largely interested in business with the deceased in his lifetime, and who, with the deceased, were inimical to this deponent, not from any wrong he ever did them, but because he was familiar with transactions in which they had been jointly concerned, the exposure of which they justly dreaded. And this deponent further saith, that, as he has been informed and verily believes, JAMES FISK, Jr., the deceased, as a matter of mere matter of revenge, ignoring the Police Courts altogether, went before the Grand Jury of this Court, impaneled at its last December term, and falsely and wickedly made a complaint against this deponent and one HELEN JOSEPHINE MANSFIELD for a conspiracy. That the said Grand Jury was, as this deponent has been informed, and verily believes, largely composed of the personal friends of the deceased, or those who were in the control of those friends, and that they are the same Grand Jury who found the indictment in question against this deponent; that, in the judgment of this deponent's counsel, even supposing them to be perfectly disinterested and impartial otherwise, after having been poisoned or prejudiced against this deponent by the false and calumnious statements of the deceased and his witnesses to sustain the manufactured charge of conspiracy against him and the said MANSFIELD, they were not a proper body to pass upon the subject of the indictment in question. And this deponent further saith that as he has been informed, and verily believes, the manufactured complaint of conspiracy was continued before the said Grand Jury after the death of the said FISK, and, as he charges and believes, with a view to prejudicing him under the present indictment for homicide, and depriving him of the testimony of the said MANSFIELD, if she should be used as a witness in his behalf under the present indictment by disparaging or blackening her, so that he would not dare to resort to her as a witness. That among other witnesses before the Grand Jury in reference to this charge of conspiracy, as this deponent has been informed and verily believes, appears the name of WM. FULLERTON, Esq., who, in the post-mortem proceedings before the Coroner's Jury, appeared as or was assumed to be one of the private counsel against this deponent. That this deponent had previously employed Mr. FULLERTON as a counsel in the lifetime of the deceased in litigations which arose between them and had paid him a counsel fee of $500, and that subsequently a demand was made upon this deponent by Mr. FULLERTON for $5,000 additional for professional services which claim this deponent refused to comply with or recognise, since which time Mr. FULLERTON has been unfriendly to him. That, on or about the 4th day of January, 1872, a summons and complaint were served upon this deponent in favor of Mr. FULLERTON, of which a copy is hereunto annexed marked schedule D. That the award spoken of in the complaint was only $10,000 altogether. That Mr. FULLERTON is possessed of many valuable secrets of this deponent, through his relation of counsel to this deponent, growing out of or affecting the relations and transactions of the deceased and this deponent, and that notwithstanding this and the hostile attitude he has placed himself in, in suing this deponent for an unjust claim, he has been, as this deponent has been informed, and verily believes, actively engaged in supervising the proceedings leading to the indictment in question, and preparing the case for the prosecution thereunder. That this deponent can attach no other explanation to his appearing in the Grand Jury room as a pretended witness in the charges of conspiracy, above referred to, than the opportunity it gave him of exercising his influence and power as a counsel against him. And this deponent further saith that, as he has been informed, and verily believes an indictment was preferred against him and the said MANSFIELD in this Court, upon the said manufactured charge of conspiracy, on or about the 20th instant. And this deponent further saith that, as he has been informed and verily believes, and, as he understands, will appear by the minutes of the Grand Jury, no further witnesses or testimony were or was furnished to, or taken before that body than to or before the Coroner's Jury. And this deponent further saith that, as he has been informed and verily believes a Grand Jury for the County of New-York was duly impaneled in the Court of General Sessions of the Peace in and for the City and County of New-York on Nov. 6, 1871; that its sessions were, on Nov. 29, 1871, continued by an order of Court to Dec. 6, 1871, from which day they were similarly extended to Dec. 30, 1871, from which day they were similarly extended to Jan. 27, 1872; that, as this deponent has been informed and verily believes, this Grand Jury were actually in session on Jan. 13, 1872, the day the indictment in question was ordered against this deponent by the body claiming to be the Grand Jury of this Court. That W. H. MORGAN, whose name appears as a witness in the minutes of the Grand Jury in reference to the false charge of conspiracy, did heretofore, as deponent is advised and believes, appear as counsel for said JAMES FISK on a motion before Justice BRADY, of the first instant, on the 1st day of December last past, and made an affidavit against this deponent; that subsequently the summons referred to in schedule D, bearing the name of said MORGAN, as attorney for said FULLERTON, was served on deponent. E. S. STOKES.

Sworn to before me this 27th day of January, 1872.
AMBROSE MONETT,
Notary Public, New-York City.

Having completed the reading of the affidavit, Mr. GRAHAM proceeded to argue in favor of the motion to quash. The papers, he said, it would be seen, were somewhat voluminous, but less would have been insufficient to expose one of the basest attempts ever made to prostitute the forms of justice in taking the life of an innocent being. The matter included the proceedings which had taken place before the Coroner, of which the latter held a full report, cut from the columns of the NEW-YORK TIMES. At that examination the Coroner's attention had been called to two points in behalf of the prisoner, one being that he should inquire into the fact whether the deceased had arms on his person or not at the time when the alleged wounding by the prisoner took place. Instead of making such inquiry, the Coroner had exerted himself, and had succeeded in excluding, to the prejudice of the prisoner, testimony bearing on this very point, so that the case went to the jury as though the conflict had been between the armed prisoner and unarmed deceased. Such an exclusion was contrary to the act which defined it as a misdemeanor to interfere with the person of a wounded man, such provision having for its purpose to show subsequently to the killing the relative positions of the parties, whether for offense or defense. In the examination before the Coroner, the District-Attorney had pretended, without any right, which he (counsel) knew of, to act as the Coroner's legal adviser; and, in truth, as it seemed to him, some sort of signaling was going on between him and the Coroner. When counsel for the prisoner saw that a murderous verdict was sought to be obtained from the jury, they demanded that evidence as to the condition of the deceased's clothing—whether he had a revolver on his person or not—should be brought in. This the Coroner had declined, claiming that the examination before him was not for the purpose of trying the guilt or innocence of accused, but to determine by what means the deceased came to his death. Mr. GRAHAM then went on to comment on the fact that the Coroner's jury were out over three hours, thus, as he claimed, showing that there was great doubt as to whether the proceeding was not a travesty of justice. When the jury came in, counsel had called the Coroner's attention to the statute requiring the proceedings to be submitted at the opening of the next Term; and, although the Coroner had promised to consider this, he had clandestinely and furtively sent the proceedings at once to the Grand Jury, and the District-Attorney had urged the matter on, apparently as if he thought, if time were given, justice would find reason that her arm should not fall on the prisoner. He claimed that MANSELL B. FIELD and Mr. EDWARDS had gone among the jury at the last moment to prejudice the prisoner, and said that the author of the outrage on DORMAN B. EATON might yet be revealed, notwithstanding the haste with which this trial was being pushed. Alluding to the investigation by the Grand Jury, he said: Among the witnesses summoned before that Grand Jury was WILLIAM FULLERTON, who had appeared as counsel against the prisoner before the Coroner, and who, doubtless, was summoned with a view to be used as counsel under the guise of a witness. The prisoner had employed FULLERTON as counsel in a suit at a fee of $500, but the latter subsequently claimed $5,000 more, or $5,500 in all; and on the prisoner's refusing to pay, FULLERTON had become unfriendly to him, and had brought suit against him for this sum, which he did not owe. This conduct of Mr. FULLERTON, in having been once counsel for Mr. STOKES and learned his secrets, and then proceeding before the Grand Jury, was such as must command the disapprobation of every member of the Bar. The affidavit further charged, he said, that the conspiracy case was acted on five days after the indictment for the homicide, and that WILLIAM H. MORGAN, Mr. FISK's standing attorney, was also a witness on the conspiracy charge, and was attorney in the $5,000 suit for Mr. FULLERTON.

At this point Mr. MCKEON asked if the District-Attorney had any answer to the affidavit read on behalf of the prisoner, to which District-Attorney GARVIN replied that he had not.

Mr. GRAHAM then, continuing his argument, said, that these affidavits being admitted, it seemed to him that they stamped the indictment as a paper unworthy to remain on the files of the Court. There had been a ruling that the action of a Grand Jury was final. If that were the rule, it was better the Grand Jury should be abolished. He regarded the action of the Grand Jury as a matter, not of form, but of substance. In those falsely accused from being placed in the position this prisoner now stands. In support of this theory, counsel quoted from STORY, to show that the Grand Inquest was intended and treated in the history of jurisprudence as a most important protection to the accused, and was adopted both in the Constitution of the United States and of the State. By the Constitution of the State a Grand Jury had been contemplated as it was known to the common law, that was one Grand Jury to the County and the act of 1870, legalizing the co-existence of two Grand Juries at the same time was in conflict with the provisions of the Constitution. After discussing still further the validity of the acts of a Grand Jury of the Oyer and Terminer, while the Grand Jury of the Court of General Sessions was sitting, Mr. GRAHAM argued that the statute provided that the presentment should be made at the next Grand Jury. Under this provision the next Grand Jury would not meet until next Monday, but Mr. SULLIVAN, the Assistant District-Attorney, had interpreted "next" to mean "present" Grand Jury. But, the Court had a right in its sound discretion to correct any errors which had occurred. In support of this, counsel cited the authority of Judge NELSON, that any irregularity might be inquired into, even though no technical challenge could be interposed. Would the District-Attorney say that the February Grand Jury would answer the same purpose? Let this prisoner be tried by the law, not by hypocrisy or malice veiled in the forms of law. Could a hostile counsel be permitted to cause himself to be subpœnaed that he might enter the room of the Grand Jury in the guise of a witness, and then dropping his cloak as counsel use the stiletto against the enemy? He had shown that the case was presented to the Coroner's jury in a garbled form; that his counsel had protested; that a lawyer who had never seen the body, was introduced upon the Coroner's jury, goes with them into their room and endeavors to coerce them into a murderous verdict.

Mr. GRAHAM then concluded his argument by referring to the fact that the prisoner's counsel had no notice of the Coroner's intention to send the papers in the case before the Oyer and Terminer Grand Jury; that thereby the prisoner was deprived of his right to object to the panel; that the indictment did not bear on its back the names of the witnesses on which the indictment was found; that the Grand Jury was coerced into finding a felonious verdict on testimony which the Coroner's Jury could only say that the shooting was "deliberate," and that it was fair to assume that if an impartial or properly constituted Grand Jury had the case before it, a verdict would be found for a less grade of offense than murder.

The elder Mr. BARTLETT followed Mr. GRAHAM in a brief argument, in which he contended that the statute entitled the prisoner to a challenge to the array of Grand Jurors, and of that right the prisoner had been deprived in this case.

THE DISTRICT-ATTORNEY'S ARGUMENT.

District-Attorney GARVIN then proceeded to argue in opposition to the motion, and was about recapitulating the facts in the case, as developed before the Coroner's Jury, when he was interrupted by Mr. MCKEON, who claimed that the District-Attorney had no right to refer to any matters which he did not present by affidavit. The objection was overruled by the Court, and Mr. GARVIN then detailed the general facts, contending that they showed a clear case of murder, and no Grand Jury could have found any other indictment. As to the Grand Jury, he knew them, and his Honor knew them, and they knew that they acted on each case independently as it was presented before them on the testimony, and with impartiality and intelligence. As to the case for conspiracy, he would ask Mr. BARTLETT if it had not been discontinued before this case had been presented to the Grand Jury.

Mr. MCKEON answered that, if the District-Attorney would bring the conspiracy case to trial, it is all the defendant's counsel asked. Such a trial would throw light on this whole case, and show its real merits. He dared, he said, the District-Attorney to bring that case to trial.

District-Attorney GARVIN said he was speaking to Mr. BARTLETT, and asked him if his statement was not correct.

Mr. GRAHAM—So much the worse—so much the worse.

Mr. BARTLETT then explained that at the Coroner's investigation Mr. FULLERTON did send up a request that the case be discontinued.

Mr. GRAHAM—Yes, after he had been a whole day sending up questions, and began to feel the indelicacy of his position.

District-Attorney GARVIN concluded his argument by claiming that no other Grand Jury could come to a different conclusion on the facts presented in the case; that there was nothing in the oath of a grand juror where duplicate juries were in session, under the statute, to conflict with the provisions in the Constitution in relation to the formation of the Grand Jury; and that the meaning of the statute of 1870 was, to distribute the business between the two Grand Juries.

THE RESPONSE.

Mr. GRAHAM replied, recapitulating the leading points of his previous argument, and criticising sharply the conduct of Ex-Judge FULLERTON in the case. It came from the latter with bad grace, he said, one who had himself felt the vice of the law pinch, now that he had got free, to turn, like a bloodhound, in pursuit of a former client. Mr. GRAHAM after stating that he and his associates were dogged by scoundrels of detectives, listening to their words and offering perjured testimony, concluded by a powerful appeal to the Court to grant the motion to quash, as a matter not only within its discretion, but of absolute right to the prisoner.

Mr. MCKEON added a few remarks, in which he claimed it as well known that, during the life of FISK, there was organized assassination in this City, and he, (Mr. MCKEON,) though he had been through the District-Attorney's office, both State and Federal, yet in this case, for the first time, had he feared assassination.

This closed the argument, and Judge INGRAHAM took the papers, saying he would render his decision on Thursday next. The prisoner was then quietly removed, while the large crowd in the Court-room were detained until he had got away.

The schedule referred to by Mr. GRAHAM in his argument, and the testimony before the Coroner's Jury, all of which has already appeared in the TIMES, together with the complaint in the suit of FULLERTON against STOKES, were handed up to the Court as a part of the papers used on the motion. This complaint was not sworn to, was signed only by the attorney, and bears date the 2d of January, 1872.

The Gas Swindle.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The leader in your paper, this morning, on the extortion now being practiced on the householders who have the misfortune to live under the rule of the Metropolitan Gas Company, is a very just one. My bill for December was one-fourth more than it ever was before during the Winter months, and the gas supplied before the explosion on Saturday, the 23d December, was wretchedly poor, as every one knows. After the explosion we were all left in utter darkness for four days, yet I am told that I have burnt much more gas—they mean air, I suppose—as they have "tested" the meter, and say it is correct. I have paid my bill to avoid trouble, but I look on it simply as a swindle.

How long do the people mean to stand this monopoly? Yours truly, A VICTIM.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Jan. 29, 1872.

Carl Schurz in Missouri.

From the St. Louis Democrat, Jan. 27.

For many months Senator SCHURZ has been playing on the national stage the part of injured innocency, protesting that his course and conduct were solely those of an independent and conscientious Republican, seeking the good of his country through the purity and efficiency of his party. Declaring himself a Republican of Republicans, his whole action tended to break down the party that elected him, and naturally aroused suspicions of deliberately meditated treachery. This was as far back as the early part of the last session of Congress. The expression of these suspicions began in the country Press of Missouri, among the journals that had gone with SCHURZ and defended him in the bolt of '70. The Missouri Democrat was tardy and reluctant to admit these suspicions, or to contemplate as morally possible the perfidious intentions attributed to him. But as time passed, the action of SCHURZ's adopted intimates in St. Louis, the avowals of his own journal, his constant coincident expressions and acts, his and his coterie's affiliation with Democratic leaders, and the systematic co-operation of Democrats and Schurz men in this city, with his steadily increasing demonstrations of hostility to his party, left it unquestionable that a thoroughly premeditated plan of warfare against that party in the Presidential campaign was being persistently worked out by this arch hypocrite and demagogue.

Nevertheless, Mr. SCHURZ has repudiated any such designs with so frequent and lofty apostrophes to the virtues as to have long retained a large share of the sincere respect of many Republicans in other States, especially in the East, less favored than we with opportunities of discovering the hollowness of his professions and the mockery of his consummate cant. As late as the last issue of Harper's Weekly, that journal took occasion to express its confidence that Mr. SCHURZ's sole objection to the Republican Party was his apprehension that it would renominate GRANT, and that in no other event could the Senator appear as a candidate for Republican standard. Mr. CURTIS and some other generous Republicans of more comprehensiveness than accuracy of vision, could not conceive that CARL SCHURZ was playing a double part, the supernally moral to retain the confidence of just such Republicans as they, and the infernally treacherous to the Party which could suggest to the reader, i. e., that SCHURZ would support any other candidate the Republican Party should name! This utterance is for CURTIS and such as he, that, perchance, they may still believe in the pious devotion of SCHURZ to his party.

The Grand Jury's Investigations.

The Grand Jury were in session yesterday, engaged, as it was said, in the investigation of the Municipal frauds. Among the witnesses who have been subpœnaed are Mr. STRAHAN, one of the counsel in the original civil suits against Controller CONNOLLY, and Ex-Chamberlain BRADLEY. Both of these individuals were in the General Sessions Court building while the Grand Jury were in session. No indictments were brought into Court, and it is supposed that none in the Ring cases will be presented by the Jury before next Saturday.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 29.

Mr. SUMNER called attention to the omission from the Globe of Mr. HAMLIN's suggestion on Friday, that before voting on Mr. SUMNER's equal-rights amendment, the Senate should sing "Old Hundred." He complained of the omission because it rendered his own succeeding remark unintelligible. He read a note from the publishers of the Globe, stating that the omission had been made at the request of Mr. HAMLIN, and said he hoped they would make the necessary correction.

A bill was introduced by Mr. HOWE, of Wisconsin, allowing homestead settlers and the heirs of homestead settlers burned out in the States of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan until the 1st of January, 1873, to rebuild on and reoccupy their homestead lands.

AMNESTY.

The morning hour was exhausted in discussing the resolution to direct the arrest of CHITTENDEN and CAMP, witnesses who refused to testify before the Sub-Kuklux Committee in South Carolina, and at the close the Amnesty bill came up as the special order. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, moved to lay it aside and take up the Apportionment bill. Mr. TRUMBULL opposed the motion, and said the Senate had unanimously agreed on Friday that the Amnesty bill should be proceeded with today. After some discussion the yeas and nays were ordered, and the resolution was lost by a vote of 21 to 26.

APPORTIONMENT.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, the Amnesty bill was then postponed until 1 o'clock Tuesday, with the understanding that the vote shall not be taken on that day. The Senate then took up the Apportionment bill, and Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, addressed the Senate. He preferred the Senate substitute to the House bill. He criticised the House bill as unjust to several of the States, and said that if the ratio of representation which it applied to Vermont were to be applied all over the union it would give an aggregate of only 230 members instead of 283, the number provided for in the bill. The question was on the first amendment reported by the Judiciary Committee, providing that the House shall consist of the present number, 243, instead of 283, as proposed in the House bill. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, moved to amend so as to make the number 292, but the motion was lost by yeas 17, nays 31. Mr. EDMUNDS again argued that the House bill would violate the constitutional principle of equity of representation. The other amendments reported by the Committee were rejected except the last, which was adopted by yeas 27, nays 25. It provides that should any State after the passage of the act deny or abridge the right of any of its male citizens to vote at any election named in the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, except for participation in the rebellion or other crime, the number of its Representatives shall be proportionately reduced. Mr. PATTERSON moved to amend so as to give Vermont and New-Hampshire three members each. Lost, 48 to 0. Several other amendments were rejected, and the bill was reported to the Senate, and the amendment made in Committee of the Whole concurred in by yeas 34, nays 19. The bill was then passed, all the Senators present voting in the affirmative except Messrs. Edmunds, Hamilton of Maryland, Morrill of Vermont, Norwood, Patterson, Saulsbury and Vickers. The Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The usual number of bills were introduced under the call of States. Among them were the following: Granting woman suffrage; for arming and equipping the whole militia force of the United States; for redemption of lands bought by the Government on direct tax sales; to allow women to vote and hold offices in the Territories; to organize a new Territory out of Dakota (Sioux); for the retirement of the national bank notes and the substitution of United States Treasury notes, and for the withdrawal of all the fractional currency and for a general banking law.

THE IRON TARIFF.

Memorials were presented, among others that of iron-workers in a Philadelphia rolling-mill against alteration of the duties on iron and iron manufactures.

INDEPENDENCE HALL AND SQUARE.

A resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to inquire into the propriety of procuring for the United States the title to Independence Hall and Square in Philadelphia.

DISABILITIES REMOVED.

Bills for the removal of political disabilities from a dozen citizens of Georgia, about twenty citizens of Tennessee, several Kentuckians, North Carolinians, and one resident of Nevada, were passed.

CUBAN BELLIGERENCY.

Mr. VOORHEES introduced a bill recognizing a state of war between Spain and the Republic of Cuba, and declaring both parties to the conflict to be entitled to all the rights conceded to belligerents by international law, including the right to carry their respective national flags within the waters of the United States, and be moved to suspend the rules, and pass the bill. Mr. BANKS suggested that it should be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. After a brief discussion as to the disposition to be made of the measure, the motion to suspend was negatived by yeas, 73: nays, 109. The bill was then referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, wished to send with it a resolution declaring that, in the interests of civilization, philanthropy and Christianity, the interposition of the people of the United States is demanded for pacification between the people of Cuba and Mexico. Mr. VOORHEES consented.

DIPLOMATIC APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. SWANN, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the annual Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill, which was made the special order for Thursday next. The total sum appropriated by the bill is $1,217,959.

FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

The Senate concurrent resolution for a final adjournment on the 29th of May, was called by Mr. DAWES, who wanted an expression of the will of the House on the subject, so that it should be understood in good time. His own idea was that Congress could as well adjourn on the 20th of May as on the 20th of July, provided the time was fixed long enough in advance. Mr. FARNSWORTH wished the resolution referred to one of the leading committees of the House. The Senate had not yet passed a single public bill, and yet had passed this resolution of final adjournment. It appeared to him that the adoption of the resolution meant no revision of the tariff at this session—no revision of taxation. Mr. GARFIELD, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, was not ready yet to see the limit of the session fixed for the 29th of May. He favored the reference of the resolution either to the Committee of Ways and Means or the Committee on Appropriations. Mr. BROOKS said the Committee on Ways and Means would not be prepared to report a bill for the revision of the tariff and internal revenue before next April, and the adoption of the resolution at this time was equivalent to saying that the Government would continue to collect from the people $70,000,000 a year in taxes and incomes. Mr. DAWES, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, did not admit that the Committee would not be ready to report a bill to reduce taxation before April. If the House thought it unwise to fix so early a day for adjournment it should say so now, and that was the reason he had called up the resolution. The debate was continued by Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, in favor, Mr. HOLMAN, who proposed a substitute, declaring that Congress should not adjourn until after the revision of the tariff, reduction of internal revenue, and reform of the civil service; Mr. BANKS in opposition; Mr. COX also in opposition; Mr. BINGHAM, who supported the resolution; Mr. KELLOGG, of Connecticut, who desired repeal of the income tax first; Mr. KERR, who held it would be an unpardonable evasion of duty to adjourn without attending to the necessary legislation; and Mr. MAYNARD, and at the close was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means by yeas 129, nays 77.

A HEAVY BAIT TO SHARKS.

A resolution was offered by Mr. GARFIELD requesting the Senate to return to the House a bill passed last week, making pensions commence from the date of the discharge or death of a soldier, and in connection with it he caused to be read a communication from the Commissioner of Pensions stating that the bill would involve an expenditure of $32,500,000, one-fourth of which would find its way into the pockets of thieves and sharks and vagabonds, in the shape of claim agents. After considerable discussion, the House refused to suspend the rules and adopt the resolution. Adjourned.

The Old Firemen's Ball.

Once per annum comes the ball of the old FIRE Department. Its proceeds are devoted to the aid of the widows and orphans of members of the old Department who died "in the harness." Last evening the ball came off at the Academy of Music, a place famous for the number of brilliant spectacles of the kind which have been exhibited there. The Academy was most beautifully decorated. The poetry of floral display was written all over the auditorium, and a drop-curtain, painted for the occasion, bore an illustration of the great fire of 1835—an episode in the history of the Metropolis on which the old-time fireman loves to dwell, and about which he has many stories to narrate. The Academy was thronged until two or three of the small hours of the morning had passed, and all seemed to enjoy themselves as fully as good music, mirth and the spirit of the occasion would allow.

Fire at Bound Brook, N. J.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning a fire originated in the house of Mrs. BOGERT, at Bound Brook, which threatened to destroy the entire village. The building was burned to the ground, and also an adjoining one, occupied by Mr. VAN ERS, a jeweler. With the exception of the stock of the latter, which was saved, both buildings, with their contents, are a total loss. The fire spread so rapidly that the family of Mrs. BOGERT were obliged to make their escape through the upper windows. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is $7,000, on which there is $1,000 insurance. The village has no facilities for extinguishing fires.

NEW-JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

The Pennsylvania Central—Executive Appointments—The Bergen Tunnel and Erie—New Bills.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TRENTON, Monday, Jan. 29, 1872.

There are some indications of an entire change of policy on the part of the Pennsylvania Central as to railroad legislation. It now looks as if that corporation means to stand wholly on the defensive, taking no part whatever in aggressive movements. This course is said to have been advised by leading men in the old Camden and Amboy management, who believe that the lease of the united railways can in no way be made so popular as by the total abstinence of the lessees from all attempts to manipulate legislation, to the prejudice of legitimate enterprises. If this policy shall be adhered to, New-Jersey will have ground for genuine satisfaction that the old régime has been merged in that of which Col. SCOTT is the controlling spirit.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

It is understood that Gov. PARKER will send in his first batch of nominations this week. For the Essex County Prosecutorship, worth $8,000 or $10,000 a year, there are three candidates—Messrs. ABBEL, GOULD and PERRY—all of whom are here pressing their claims. All are young men, Mr. GOULD, who is forty or thereabouts, being the oldest, and all have considerable backing. Mr. PERRY is the son of Hon. NEHEMIAH PERRY, who succeeded the late Gov. PENNINGTON as Representative in Congress from the Fifth District. Mayor ABBEL is a son of a well-known retired clergyman of the Reformed Church, while Mr. GOULD ranks as the leading criminal lawyer of East Jersey.

Three vacancies in the Supreme Bench occur early in Governor PARKER's administration. It is thought that Judges DEPUE and WOODHULL, Republicans, will be reappointed, but that Judge DALRYMPLE, also Republican, will be supplanted by a Democrat. The term of one Judge of the Court of Errors also expires this year, and several gentlemen in the eastern part of the State are already named for the succession. For Clerk of the Supreme Court there are over a dozen candidates. This office is worth some $15,000 a year in fees, but a proposition will be made to fix the salary at a definite amount, all fees to go to the State.

BERGEN TUNNEL.

The Committee on the Bergen Tunnel will hold a meeting on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of hearing the arguments of those who desire the consent of the tunnel transferred to a State Commission. It is expected that the Erie people will resist any legislation to this end. It is not unlikely that an effort will be made during the session to repeal the bill passed some years ago, under which the Erie directors were able to carry on, in New-Jersey, the fight against DANIEL DREW, and of which, possibly, they might at some time desire again to avail themselves.

In the House the war has been opened on Erie. Bills were introduced today repealing the Freight act of last year, and the act taking suits for overcharges out of the Courts. Other bills repealing Erie legislation are to follow. In the Senate a bill was introduced to incorporate St. Peter's College, of Jersey City. This is a scheme of the Society of Jesus. There were also introduced supplements to the Paterson and Jersey City charters.

The bill creating a State Insurance Department is indefinitely postponed. In the House a proposition was introduced to amend the State Constitution so as to make the pay of members of the Legislature $500 per annum. A bill was also introduced to create the office of Controller in Elizabeth.

Atlantic Mail Service.

The following letter has been sent to Mr. CRESWELL, Postmaster-General:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26, 1872

SIR: As you are aware some two years ago a contract was made with the Guion line of steamers for the conveyance of a Wednesday mail from New-York to Queenstown. It was stated at the time that you could make no better arrangement. That contract expired on 1st January, 1872—during the whole period of its duration it had been most unsatisfactory to merchants and to the people generally, owing to the slow time made by the vessels employed. The knowledge that the service was a poor one, and the cause of great loss and inconvenience to the public on both sides of the water induced the Cunard Company to place at your service its fast Wednesday steamers to carry a mail for the same compensation as was paid to the Guion line. This offer you referred to the Senate Committees on Commerce and Postal Affairs, who today advised you to renew the contract with the Guion line. This fact, coupled with the knowledge whom I possess of the great loss and inconvenience to the public, and especially to the mercantile interests of the country, which would ensue, induces me, in the interest of the very numerous patrons of our line, to offer to take a mail on Wednesdays from New-York to Queenstown without any compensation, provided the Post-office Department will deliver the mails at our wharf. This would enable you to reduce the postage to four cents on letters to England.

By reference to the statements which I handed to you this morning, it will appear that if the mails had been carried by the Cunard line during 1871 in thirty-eight out of fifty-two trips the mails would have been delivered in London on Saturday, and that during the same period the mails leaving the same day were actually delivered by the Guion line thirty-six times on Monday, and the remaining times later in the week, viz.: Tuesday, Wednesday, and even Thursday.

I shall be happy to wait upon you at any time with reference to this matter. I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

CHARLES FRANCKLYN.

A memorial to Mr. CRESWELL has also been presented by most of the chief merchants of New-York, praying that the mail contract should be restored to the Cunard line, which undoubtedly would effect a saving of over a day and a half on each voyage.

Destruction of a Barn, with Fifty Head of Choice Cattle and Six Horses.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Monday, Jan. 29, 1872.

Early on Saturday night a large new barn, belonging to ABRAHAM RYERSON, in this town, was discovered to be on fire. No means of staying the flames being at hand at the time of their discovery, they were found to be uncontrollable when aid arrived from Goshen village. There were in the barn forty-five or fifty head of choice cattle and six blooded horses, all of which were burned up. The cries of the poor animals are described as terrible. The barn had been but a short time in use, and, beside the live stock, contained an immense store of hay, straw, grain and feed of all kinds, wagons, harness, &c., which were also destroyed. The loss will not fall short of ten or twelve thousand dollars. One horse that was burned was valued at two thousand dollars. The property was insured for six thousand dollars.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The principal transaction effected at the Exchange, yesterday, Jan. 29, was the sale made by MULLER, WILKINS & Co. of business property on Cortlandt and Dey streets, as follows: First-class five-story brown-stone front store and lot, situate on the north side of Cortlandt-street, between Broadway and Church-street, extending through to and fronting on Dey-street, and known as No. 18 Cortland and No. 19 Dey-street, the lot having a front on the first-named street of 26 feet, and on the last named of 24 feet, with a depth of 228 feet: sold for $71,100 to O. S. CARTER. With the other real estate offered by the same firm, namely, the premises No. 714 Broadway—a three-story marble-front house and lot on the east side of the street, between Fourth-street and Astor-place—and five building lots on the south side of One Hundred and Fifteenth-street, near Third-avenue, an equal degree of success was not met with, no sales being made, although for the Broadway property a bona fide bid of $82,000 was received. At a Supreme Court sale, in foreclosure, JULIUS J. LYONS, Esq., referee, JOSEPH MCGUIRE disposed of a small house and lot located on the south side of Fifty-first-street, 474.6 feet east of Tenth-avenue, for $12,700; purchased by Mrs. LOSINE ROTHSCHILD, plaintiff in the suit in action. The only other business transacted was a receiver's sale conducted by JOHNSON & MILLER, at which all the right, title and interest in and to the mining lands and property belonging to the American Tunnel and Silver Mining Company, situate in Monitor Mining District, Alpine County, in the State of California, was sold to JOHN G. ATWATER for $675. The attendance yesterday at the Exchange was large, and business for the week opens with a good feeling. To-day the sales to occur are numerous and of importance, as the class of real estate to be offered at auction is superior. In this connection the attention of investors is particularly called to the sale of Fourth-avenue property by MULLER, WILKINS & Co.; to the sale of lease-hold property on Front-st. by E. H. LUDLOW & Co., and to the sale of desirable Brooklyn building lots by JOHNSON & MILLER, all of which are announced to take place at the Exchange to-day, and all of which should meet with success.

FINANCIAL.

EIGHT PER CT. BONDS, OF GREENE COUNTY, State of Missouri.

The attention of investors is called to the above Bonds, which are issued to the Kansas City and Memphis branch of the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad Company. The total debt of Greene County, prior to the issue of these bonds, was about $15,000. The assessed valuation of taxable property—which is estimated at half its actual value—is $6,713,078, in addition to which some $2,000,000 of railroad property will become taxable for the first time during the present year.

The entire issue of these bonds is $400,000, in coupon bonds of $1,000 each, bearing date Aug. 1, 1871, and maturing in twenty years. Interest, at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, is payable in New-York on the first days of February and August in each year. We are authorized to offer this loan to the public at 80 and accrued interest, with the reserved right to advance the price at any time. At this price they pay OVER ELEVEN PER CENT. on the investment.

Government and other marketable securities received in exchange at current rates, we paying express charges both ways.

Pamphlets, &c., with full particulars, or any further information, will be furnished upon application, either personally or by letter.

NOTICE.

REDEMPTION OF 5-20 BONDS OF 1862.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Dec. 20, 1871.

By virtue of the authority given by an act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled "An act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," I hereby give notice that the principal and accrued interest of the bonds herein-below designated, known as Five-twenty Bonds, will be paid at the Treasury of the United States, in the City of Washington, on and after the 20th day of March, 1872, and that the interest on said bonds will cease on that day. That is to say, Coupon Bonds known as the "Second Series," act of Feb. 25, 1862, dated May 1, 1862, as follows:

COUPON SECOND SERIES.

$50—No. 5461 to No. 10776, both inclusive.
$100—No. 13094 to No. 25085, both inclusive.
$500—No. 7965 to No. 16179, both inclusive.
$1,000—No. 11121 to No. 27443, both inclusive.
	—$16,000,000

REGISTERED.

$50—No. 698 to No. 840, both inclusive.
$100—No. 5080 to No. 5691, both inclusive.
$500—No. 2048 to No. 2985, both inclusive.
$1,000—No. 11009 to No. 13150, both inclusive.
$5,000—No. 3403 to No. 4102, both inclusive.
$10,000—No. 3000 to No. 4774, both inclusive.
	—4,000,000
Total	$20,000,000

Of the amount outstanding (embraced in the numbers as above) on the 15th of January, $5,000,000 dollars are Coupon Bonds and four million ($4,000,000) dollars are Registered Bonds.

Coupon Bonds of the act of Feb. 25, 1862, were issued in four different series. Bonds of the first series (all of which have been previously called for redemption) do not bear the series designated upon them, while those of the second, third and fourth series are distinctly marked on the face of the bonds.

United States securities forwarded for redemption should be addressed to the "Loan Division," Secretary's Office, and all Registered Bonds should be "assigned to the Secretary of the Treasury for redemption."

The bonds specified in the notice of Dec. 7, will be paid upon presentation, together with all interest due.

GEO. S. BOUTWELL, Secretary.

THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

OMAHA BRIDGE BONDS.

The London and San Francisco Bank, Limited, hereby gives notice that, under the provisions of the Omaha Bridge Bonds, issued by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, the trustees of the mortgage by which the said bonds are secured have drawn by lot the bonds for redemption on the first of April next, and that the following are the numbers of the bonds so drawn: Nos. 1,131, 139, 203, 248, 311, 567, 595, 606, 612, 623, 639, 674, 690, 865, 869, 932, 978, 1,024, 1,069, 1,138, 1,152, 1,195, 1,214, 1,427, 1,601, 1,615, 1,635, 1,770, 1,833, 1,851, 1,930, 2,097, 2,209, 2,317, 2,320, 2,352, 2,466.

The said bonds will be payable on and after the 1st April next, on the surrender thereof, with all the undue coupons, at the office of the bank, No. 22 Old Broad-st., London, E. C., in sterling, or at the office of Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co., No. 53 Exchange-place, New-York, in United States gold coin, at par, together with a premium of ten per cent. upon the nominal value, namely, at the rate of $220 sterling or $1,100 gold, per bond. By order.

FINANCIAL.

A FIRST-CLASS NEW-YORK SECURITY AT A LOW PRICE.

The undersigned offer for sale the FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS of the Syracuse and Chenango Valley Railroad, at 95 and accrued interest.

This road runs from the City of Syracuse to Smith's Valley, where it unites with the New-York Midland Railroad, thus connecting that city by a direct line of road with the Metropolis.

Its length is forty-two miles, its COST ABOUT $40,000 PER MILE, and it is MORTGAGED FOR LESS THAN $12,000 PER MILE; the balance of the funds required for its construction having been raised by subscription to the capital stock.

The road approaches completion. It traverses a populous and fertile district of the State, which insures it a paying business, and it is under the control of gentlemen of high character and ability. Its bonds possess all the requisites of an inviting investment. They are amply secured by a mortgage for LESS THAN ONE-THIRD THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY. They pay SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD INTEREST, and are offered five per cent. below par. The undersigned confidently recommend them to all classes of investors.

GEORGE OPDYKE & CO.,
No. 25 Nassau-st.

CAYUGA LAKE RAILROAD, State of New-York, 7 PER CENTS. FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS.

THIRTY YEARS TO RUN, AND ISSUED FOR $20,000 PER MILE.

This road forms the shortest and most direct route from the great anthracite and semi-bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania into the central part of this State, and will run in connection with the New-York Central Road, which it crosses at Cayuga Bridge. Traversing, as it does, the finest and most populous agricultural district, generally known as the "GARDEN OF THE STATE," its local traffic will be large, but its greatest source of revenue will be from its coal business. The road is being rapidly built, and will be in active operation during this year. From our knowledge of this enterprise, and after the most thorough investigation, we most confidently recommend the Bonds as a safe investment. We offer, for the present, the Bonds at 90 and accrued interest in currency.

THE PANORMO MURDER.

The Panormo tragedy continues to attract the attention of the Brooklyn public, and every detail is looked for with the greatest interest. The Police are as inefficient as ever, and have taken no steps to bring the murderer to justice, except those heretofore related. The people of Brooklyn are very much excited, and those of the male population whose business call them out a late hour at night go well armed and prepared for any emergency. The following is a statement made by the man MILLER, who was suspected by the Police of being concerned in the assault on Mr. PANORMO:

On Tuesday night, at about 9:50, he left a lager-beer saloon on the corner of Myrtle-avenue and Navy-street, and proceeded at a quick pace to Park-avenue. On reaching Park-avenue he walked briskly toward Clermont-avenue, where he lives. On reaching the corner of Park-avenue and Carlton-street, he says he found PANORMO staggering to his feet. With the aid of a man, whose name turns out to be SHERRY, he took the wounded man to MARVIN'S drug-store. Being in a great hurry to get home, instead of waiting with PANORMO, as MARVIN says, MILLER alleges that he walked off. At first he affirmed that he reached his house without seeing anybody, but upon being pressed he admitted that he met a strange man, who hailed him by name, and to whom he told the story of his finding PANORMO. This strange man, whom MILLER says he did not know, turns out to be an intimate friend, who ridicules the statement that MILLER did not know him.

The charge against KERINZLER, (heretofore reported as Kingsley,) which was based on the fact that he wore a white coat, and that the Police of the Fourth Precinct had settled upon the theory that the assault was committed on Cumberland-street, was dismissed yesterday, and Mr. KERINZLER was released from custody. No attempt has yet been made to confront any of the prisoners now in custody with Mr. BOYLAN, who alone can identify them, and so far as the efforts of the Police are concerned, the public may rest satisfied that none of the guilty parties will ever be brought to justice. This, therefore, will pass into history as one the undiscovered murders which cast a foul blot upon the records of the Police of the City of Brooklyn.

The inquest in the case of Mr. PANORMO was resumed yesterday.

The first witness sworn was WILLIAM J. SCOTT, the son of Mr. SCOTT, who resides at No. 41 Cumberland-street, where the deceased gave his last music lesson. He said:

I knew Mr. PANORMO; he taught me; he arrived at our house on Tuesday evening last at a quarter past nine; when he left he went up toward Myrtle-avenue; I saw no one in the neighborhood; he was alone.

Prof. RAFAEL NAVARRO sworn: I reside at No. 222 Duffield-street; I am a professor of music; I entered a Myrtle-avenue car on Tuesday evening last; I think it was a quarter-past ten; the car was going toward Fulton-street; I got on the car at Carlton-avenue; I was acquainted with JOHN B. PANORMO by sight; I got on the car before he did; he was injured when he entered the car; he had blood on his face; I did not speak to him; one or two gentlemen crossed over to him: I saw him pay his fare; he did not seem to me to be so very seriously injured; I think certain that he was not injured in the car; I got off at Jay-street, and left him in the car.

HUGH RILEY'S EVIDENCE.

I reside in Myrtle-avenue, No. 323; I am employed in the Custom-house stores; on Tuesday evening, the 23d inst., I was at the corner of Cumberland-street and Park-avenue; I should think it was about a quarter or twenty minutes past ten; I saw a man named MILLER; it was a cold night, and he was walking quick; I said to MILLER, "Hallo! what's your hurry!" he said, "I'm going home;" he then told me had seen a man down at the corner all bleeding; I said, "What corner?" he said at the corner of Oxford-street and Park-avenue; I said, "What's the matter with him?" he said he didn't know, but that he was all bleeding when he came along; I said, "I guess I'll take a walk down there and see what it is;" I went down toward the drug-store, after bidding MILLER good night; when I got to the corner of Oxford-street and Park-avenue, I saw a man standing up, bleeding, his face turned toward the drug-store; there were three or four men with him when I went down; I asked them what was the matter with him? They said they didn't know; I said, "Why don't you take him into the druggist's and get him dressed?" They went to the drug-store with him, and the man shut the door right in his face, and never offered to take him in; the wounded man asked where Myrtle-avenue was, and we told him, and he turned round and walked on about his business; he staggered at first; the night was cold and not very dark; there was a light in the drug-store all the time; when I met MILLER he did not seem at all agitated; before I saw MILLER I saw two or three men walking off pretty lively on the other side of the street; I heard no one cry for help; I have never examined the sidewalk where he had been beaten, either on that night or after; MILLER did not tell me where he had been, except that he had come from down town; he was going home in the direction of Clermont-avenue, where he lives; MILLER is a nice fellow; I've known him for twelve years, and never knew him to insult anybody.

Coroner JONES then read the following evidence, which he had taken on Saturday, as Mr. WASSERMAN (the deponent) had to go to Baltimore, and could not attend to the inquest.

MR. WASSERMAN'S TESTIMONY.

BENOIT WASSERMAN, being sworn, deposes and says: I live at No. 368 Myrtle-avenue; on Tuesday evening, Jan. 23; I took a Myrtle-avenue car at Carlton-avenue, about two minutes to ten o'clock; I remained on the rear platform; on reaching Cumberland-street, or just past the corner, the car stopped, and a man entered and sat down alongside of a lady, who started on his appearance, which attracted my attention; I noticed that the man had a handkerchief to his face, and that it was covered with blood; saw the conductor approach him, whereupon the man felt in one pocket of his vest and took out one cent, then felt in the other pocket and took out money, which he handed the conductor, receiving no change in return; I then said to the conductor that he should not allow a man in that condition on the car; he said the regulations allowed any person on the car who acted properly; a gentleman came from the other side of the car and asked him how he had been hurt; he replied he was hurt by some one; on asking him where, and by whom hurt, he could not speak; on arriving at Pineapple-street he raised his finger and the conductor stopped the car, and the injured man stepped off without touching the hand-rail to support him; the men who came from the end of the car were told by the injured man that he had lost his watch in the car; search was made by the man, but the watch was not found; the injured man was examining all his pockets, and I thought he was delirous; I told the conductor that this might cause trouble, and if so I was willing to give my address, which I did.

HENRY W. BEHMANN,

sworn, said: I reside at No. 214 Myrtle-avenue; am a saloon-keeper; was in my saloon all the evening on the 23d inst.; Mr. MILLER was there; he left at fifty minutes after nine; MILLER lives in Clermont-avenue; I have spoken to MILLER since his arrest; I asked him about the trouble he had got into, and he said, "Yes, you see how easy it is;" I said, "Where going at that time, on such a night?" he said, "I was going home;" this conversation was carried on in Raymond-street Jail; at this point the jailor took me by the arm and wouldn't allow me to speak to him any more; when MILLER was in my saloon he had a gray coat on, and a cap, a blue cap, I think; MILLER is a peddler; he uses a horse and wagon; I never saw MILLER quarrel; he was as easy a man as ever came in my place; when he left my place he went out alone.

THE CONDUCTOR'S EVIDENCE.

SAMUEL GALVIN sworn, said: I live at the Greenpoint stable; I am a conductor on the Greenpoint and Myrtle-avenue line; I ran a car on Tuesday, the 23d inst., in the evening; I remember a man who was bleeding coming on my car; on my nine o'clock and thirty-one minute trip from Greenpoint, coming to the Fulton Ferry; in Myrtle-avenue, in the vicinity of Oxford and Cumberland streets, the car stopped and a dark-complexioned, small man got on, went inside, and sat down in a corner; I saw the man was bleeding, and I stopped at the first drug-store there was and requested the gentleman to get off and have his wounds dressed; he made no reply, and the car went on; when I got to Canton-street he gave me a five cent piece to pay his fare; when I got to City Hall I stopped at a drug-store on Fulton-street, at the corner of Washington, as the passengers were excited, and insisted that he should have his wounds dressed there; he wouldn't get out, and the car went on, as he said he'd go home to Pineapple-street; just after the car started he commenced to feel in his pockets, and said he had lost his watch and chain in my car; I gave the passengers some matches and a search was made, but no watch was found; I told him he had not lost it in the car; I stopped the car at Pineapple-street and he got out, accompanied by somebody, down to the Fulton Ferry; I did not report the case because it did not happen on the road; some of the passengers asked the deceased how he was hurt, and he told them he was attacked by two men; he did not say where; I did not ask him where he had been hurt; there was no man sitting alongside of him at all from the time he got in until he got out.

JAMES BURRILL was sworn and said: I live at No. 164 Duffield-street; am a butcher; was on a Myrtle-avenue car on Tuesday evening, when deceased got on; he was wounded when he came in the car; no one struck or touched him in the car; I asked him who had hit him, and he said "a man;" he didn't say where; then I asked him where he got hit, and he didn't answer me; I said, "I suppose you've been in some liquor-store;" he said, "No, I don't go to such places;" I got off the car at Lawrence-street; I did not hear him say anything about losing his watch or having been robbed; don't know if the conductor stopped the car to let him get off at a drug-store, and I thought the man had been on a spree.

Mrs. MARGARET STELL sworn, said: I reside at No. 257 Carlton-avenue; I keep house there; on Tuesday evening last I was down at Mr. KUINZLER'S, in Cumberland-street, near Flushing-avenue; I went there at a quarter to eight and left at half-past ten; I am acquainted with Mr. KUINZLER'S son; he was at home that evening; he was there from a quarter to eight until I left, and I left him there; I am certain he didn't go out while I was there.

WILLIAM C. KUINZLER, sworn, said: I live at No. — Cumberland-street; am a blacksmith; on the evening of Tuesday, the 23d inst., I was not out of my house from eight o'clock until half-past ten; the last witness on the stand was at my house on that evening between those hours.

Dr. SHEPARD was then sworn; I made a post-mortem examination on the body of JOHN B. PANORMO, at No. 108 Pineapple-street, on the day following his death; I examined the body externally and found no injuries over the body or limbs; I found a scalp wound on the left side of the top of his head of about three inches and a half in length; this wound had been closed by the physician in attendance before death; one incised wound at the outer extremity of the upper eyelid was also found; on passing the probe through this opening I found the bones of the skull comminuted; I removed the scalp, and found no fracture beneath the scalp wound at the top of the head, but the bones beneath the little incised wound at the left brow, consisting of both tables of the scalp, were fractured and crushed in to a depth of three-quarters of an inch at the greatest depression; the irregular diameter of this crushed surface was about two inches one way and four inches the other; I dissected the upper lip, and found a fracture of the upper jaw bone, on the left side, at its at attachment with the cartilage of the nose; the wound extended through the optical arch, and crossed over, obliquely, fracturing the jawbone; this wound must have been inflicted with a single blow, and undoubtedly with the same instrument which inflicted the scalp wound at the top of the head, the resistance of the hat preventing the blow from producing a fracture beneath the scalp wound; I removed the top of the skull and found a clot of blood, about four ounces in quantity, beneath the fractured bones, and pressing on the brain. In my opinion, death resulted from compression of the brain, caused by the clot of blood, which was itself produced by the divided vessels at the fractured point; found the other organs of the fractured body perfectly healthy; I think the wound was inflicted by a very heavy instrument an inch or an inch and a half in width—probably an iron bar; the blow must have been inflicted with a good deal of violence; the wound on the top of the head was given first; and the other one when the victim was down.

The inquest was then adjourned until Monday evening next.

OTHER OUTRAGES.

Attempted Murder in Prospect-Street.

As Mr. H. VAN DEN HOUTEN, of No. 156 Prospect-street, was returning home through Prospect-street, about 10 o'clock on Saturday night, he was attacked within three doors of Bridge-street, and received a severe blow on the head with a slung-shot. Before he had a chance to look around for his assailants he received another terrible blow, which felled him to the sidewalk. He cried out, "For God's sake don't murder me, you must have got the wrong man." The ruffian next put his knee on the poor man, and commenced feeling him all over in search of his valuables. All the victim can remember after this, is, that the robbers pulled the ball of the slung-shot, which he had forced in his victim's mouth, to prevent his crying out for help, and struck him another murderous blow on the side of the head, which made him unconscious. It would appear that the miscreant heard steps approaching, and was frightened awdy by some means, for, on recovering his senses, Mr. VAN DEN HOUTEN found his watch and money still in his possession. The disappointment at being interrupted made the brutal wretch give his bleeding victim one more blow. Terribly bleeding and weakened by the loss of blood, which flowed so profusely as to drip from his clothing, Mr. VAN DEN HOUTEN reached home, after falling three times, although made almost unrecognizable, and probably marked for the rest of his life. He will in a few days be able to attend to his business as before. The fact of his being Treasurer of the Society of Hollanders, and the probability of the yearly payments of the members coming in at this time, it is presumed, led to the assault, which was nearly the cause of his death.

Two More Highway Robberies.

About midnight on Sunday night Mr. WALTER HOYT, a young man aged twenty-five years, residing at No. 90 Middagh-street, was walking through Henry-street, on his way home, when he was accosted at the corner of Middagh by a very tall man, dressed in dark clothes, and wearing a long black moustache, who, putting his hand on HOYT'S shoulder, asked him the time. HOYT told him that he had no watch, and knocked the man's hand off his shoulder. The man then drew a pistol and fired one shot at HOYT, the ball passing through his left arm, about four inches above the wrist. After having shot, Mr. HOYT walked home and had his wound dressed by Dr. KISSAM. Soon after the affair was reported at the station of the Second Precinct the officers arrested WM. M. RAYNOR, formerly a detective police officer, and now a Deputy Sheriff, who was found in the vicinity of the attempted robbery.

About 8 o'clock last evening as LEWIS MCLAUGHLIN, who is a collector for HARRISON & BROS., corner of Washington-avenue and Pacific-street, was driving along Atlantic-avenue, he was accosted by two men near the corner of Clove Road, one of whom seized his horse by the head and the other demanded his money. MCLAUGHLIN was fearful that they would murder him and accordingly gave them $3 18, all the money he had in his possession.

A Murderous Assault by a Father Upon His Family.

On Sunday night two young ladies applied at the station-house of the Second Precinct for assistance, and stated that their father was murdering their mother at No. 26 Talman-street. The following version of the affray is given by Mrs. STOOTHOOF, the mother of the young ladies:

For fifteen years my husband has not earned more than about $4 a week; hardly enough to pay his board. On Tuesday last he left the house at about 4 A. M., for the purpose, as he said, of attending to his duty as conductor on the Flushing-avenue cars. Since that time I did not see him until last night, when he returned home late, and sought admission; I let him in, and as he was intoxicated, or rather pretended to be, I put a pillow on the floor, and a gentleman who helped me in with him aided me in laying him down. He soon after sprang to his feet as sober as I am and swore that he would cut our hearts out; he then rushed for a carving-knife, armed with which he rushed toward us; I at once wrestled with him, and, throwing my arms around him, held him tightly in order to give my daughters time to escape; his struggles were almost superhuman in his endeavors to release himself, but I still clutched him with convulsive energy until the girls had escaped: soon after my daughters returned with two officers, when my husband was taken into custody; after this it would seem as if they did not detain my husband in the station-house, for he again returned to the house, but I would not admit him.

The Shooting of Mr. Watson in the Eastern District.

Pending the continuation of the Coroner's investigation into the cause of the death of Mr. GEORGE H. WATSON, which will be continued this evening by the Coroner, the following facts may be of interest, as showing the manner in which the pistol was procured by Mrs. HYDE:

Mr. E. I. STOWELL, who keeps a large gun and pistol store on Broadway, makes a statement as follows:

I remember that a young man and woman called at this store about two weeks ago, and after some delay purchased a Sharpe's four-shooter. I thought by their manner that they were man and wife, and regarded the matter as none what strange and unusual. The young man handed the revolver to his companion and asked her, "Will that suit you?" Having paid for it they took it and departed. A few days afterwards the young man returned and asked him to explain how the revolver was worked. This request having been complied with, he took his leave. The young man returned to the store still a third time, and purchased a package of cartridges. This occurred on Thursday last, the day previous to the murder of Mr. WATSON. Since that event, Mr. STOWELL has seen Mrs. FANNY HYDE and her brother, and fully identifies them as the parties referred to in the above statement. There was nothing said during the purchase of the pistol to indicate that Mrs. HYDE wished to make a present of it to her husband, and Mr. STOWELL'S statement concerning Schenck, Mr. HYDE'S explanation of the manner in which the pistol came into her possession.

An Important Arrest—The Detectives at Work at Last.

Last evening Detective FINEHOUT and his associates, who were watching at the Fulton Ferry for the murderer of PANORMO, had their ears pierced by the hoarse cry of JOHN BRADY, who was selling copies of one of the New-York evening papers, and stimulating purchases thereof by shouting, "Another horrible murder!" The detectives, thinking that they had had enough of horrors for one week, arrested BRADY, and on searching the paper, and finding that the "horrible murder" was simply a new version of the Panormo tragedy, they became indignant, pounced upon BRADY, and, in solemn procession, escorted him to Headquarters, followed by a large multitude, many of whom thought that the detectives had at last made a capture of some consequence. BRADY'S papers were confiscated, and he was locked up for the night at the Station-house of the First Precinct. It is considered fortunate for BRADY that Justice BULKLEY is not on the Bench this week.

Attempt at Suicide.

About 1½ o'clock yesterday morning CATHARINE SWEENEY, aged thirty-three years, residing at No. 5 Hudson-avenue, attempted to commit suicide by throwing herself out of the second-story window of her residence. She fell to the side-walk, and received a fracture of her right leg and right arm, and several internal injuries, which will probably result in her death.

GENERAL BROOKLYN NEWS.

Proposal to Increase the Police Force.

In the Common Council, yesterday Alderman ROPES offered a resolution directing the Law Committee to report whether it is expedient to increase the Police force, in view of the lawlessness which prevails at present, and if so to make the necessary application to the Legislature. Alderman BERGEN stated that there was no necessity of applying to the Legislature, as the Board has already the power to increase the force. On motion the resolution was tabled.

It is a fact that the Police force is not now up to its full complement. When the force passed under the control of the present Commissioners it numbered about 400. By dismissals and resignations it has been reduced to in the neighborhood of 350. If the force was increased to the original standard of numbers and efficiency, 400 would be sufficient. It is understood that as soon as Commissioner VAN ANDEN recovers sufficiently, and Commissioner BRIGGS returns, there will be a thorough overhauling of the Police Department.

The Fulton Ferry-House Squabbles.

A meeting of the Committee on Ferry and Water Rights was held in the Common Council chamber yesterday afternoon, when Corporation Counsel DEWITT was invited to attend to give his views in relation to the matter under consideration. He said that it was the duty of the Common Council to preserve the rights of the city, and suffer no corporation to curtail those rights. On motion of Alderman DWYER, and with the approval of the Corporation Counsel, it was decided to report the following for adoption by the Common Council:

Resolved, That the Corporation Counsel be and he is hereby authorized and directed to institute legal proceedings against the Union Ferry Company, to recover damages for the unlawful occupation of Water and Fulton streets, by the erection of their new ferry-house thereon, and to compel it to pay to the City a just and full rental or remuneration for the use and occupation of the public property, and to take such other legal proceedings as he may deem just and proper to enforce and maintain the rights of the City in the premises.

A Slight Breeze in the Common Council Chamber.

Yesterday, during the session of the Common Council, Alderman WILEY, of the Seventh Ward, opened his batteries upon Corporation Counsel DEWITT, and replied to the assault of the latter upon him at the last meeting, reciting, in the course of his speech, some rather damaging allegations with reference to the manner in which the Corporation Counsel's office was conducted. The speech of Alderman WILEY was abridged by the ruling of the President, Mr. BERGEN, who decided that he was out of order. The quarrel between Mr. DEWITT and Alderman WILEY is of long standing and originated out of a little "unpleasantness" during the Alderman's incumbency of the chief clerkship of the Street Commissioner's office.

Brief Notes.

The house of Mr. WILLIAM HERRIES, in the Eastern District, was entered on Friday night and robbed of shirts and other articles of wearing apparel, valued at $75.

JOSEPH WATERS, conductor of car No. 19 of the Brooklyn and Hunter's Point Railroad line, was arrested yesterday on a charge of embezzling twenty cents belonging to the company.

Dr. NELSON A. GARRISON, one of the founders of the Kings County Medical Society, died on the 26th inst. He was born in Brooklyn, where he practised medicine for more than forty years.

The residence of ANDREW SMITH, No. 1,542 Atlantic-avenue, was entered by thieves through the back basement window, on Monday morning, and clothing valued at $25 was stolen therefrom.

The inhabitants of Williamsburg are about to present a petition to the Legislature appealing for lower rates of ferriage, and to compel the ferry companies to furnish accommodations adequate to the public necessities.

Mr. EAST, who shot himself at the boarding-house of Mrs. SNOW, at the corner of Fulton and Pineapple streets, on Sunday morning, died at the City Hospital yesterday morning. An inquest will be held during this day.

ANNA OSBORN, aged sixty-three years, residing in Sixteenth-street, near Third-avenue, was found dead in her room yesterday afternoon by her employer, who had just returned from his work. Her death is supposed to have been caused by disease of the heart.

The recent visit of Postmaster BOOTH to Washington has resulted in orders from the Postmaster-General to lease the present location for another year. Mr. BOOTH was in favor of taking the Washington-street M. E. Church for $5,000, or a new building at the corner of Fulton-avenue and Gallatin-place.

About 6 o'clock last evening, a fire broke out in the two-story frame building, No. 396 Grand-street, occupied by SOLOMON ALLEE, as a crockery store. It was soon extinguished. Loss on stock, $500; insured for $5,000 in the Phenix of Hartford, and the Phenix of Brooklyn. The fire was caused by the overturning of a kerosene lamp.

What Becomes of the License Money?

One of the duties of the Mayor's office under the present charter is to grant licenses and permits for street-cars, hacks, carts, sidewalk-stands, show-cases, projecting signs, street-venders, omnibuses, and a great variety of similar things; receive the fees fixed by law for the same; render an account of the same to the City Treasury, and pay the money. A large sum is either collected, or collectable annually, for these licenses by the Mayor or his attachés, but only a small amount gets into the public treasury. A few facts will indicate the amount of the plunder from this source pocketed by somebody. The annual license fee for a City railroad-car is $50. The number of cars run by the fourteen City railroads is between one and two thousand—the annual license fee upon which is from $50,000 to $100,000. The whole amount paid into the City Treasury for the year 1871, for car licenses, was less than $9,000. Only three City railroads are reported to the Treasury from the Mayor's office as having paid any license fees at all, and these have paid only on a part of their cars. By a convenient arrangement with the Corporation Attorney, now Hon. TOM FIELDS, member of the Assembly, the other eleven City railroads pay no license money into the City Treasury, except the Hudson River Road on only five cars. A quiet suit seems to have been got up between that non-paying roads and the City, which is supposed to have been for a long time under the manipulation of the Corporation Attorney, but which suit, as managed, seems to be of no possible profit to anybody but the Corporation Attorney and his friends. The License Bureau of the Mayor's office is so loosely managed, and the returns to the Treasury so loosely and improperly made, that it is difficult, if not impossible, to tell what money has been received for the last three years, or what has become of it. This Bureau would bring in several hundred thousand dollars a year to the City Treasury if honestly and efficiently managed. But at present, it seems to be chiefly a source of private profit and political plunder. A monthly report should be made public from this Bureau, showing all the licenses granted, to whom granted, for what granted, and at what prices, and a monthly return made under oath of the Mayor to the Treasury. Third Avenue road is now before the Legislature for permission to raise its fare from five to fifteen cents on thirty cars, while it has for years refused to pay its license tax to the City on over two hundred cars.

Repeal of the Erie Classification Act.

The suggestion made in the TIMES of yesterday, that the Erie stockholders should circulate a petition counter to that circulated by the present Erie management, has already been acted upon, many leading merchants and bankers having signed a petition to the Legislature for a repeal of the "Erie Classification Act," and also requesting the Legislature to order a new election for Directors of the Erie Railway Company. Persons wishing to sign a copy of this petition will find it in the counting-room of the TIMES Office.

ALDERMANIC LEGISLATION.

Yesterday's Proceedings in Both Boards—Appointment of Standing Committees—Gas and Its Relation to the Public—The Collector of Assessments and His Income—A Busy Day for the Assistant Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen met at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, President COCHRANE in the chair, and all the members present except Alderman VANCE. After the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved, the members of the Board drew lots for seats. This business having been settled, the President called upon the Secretary to read the list of Standing Committees. The list was accordingly read as follows:

Arts and Sciences, including Public Instruction—Aldermen Vance, Wilder, and Radde.

Public Works—Aldermen Conover, Gilsey, and McLaren.

Ferries—Aldermen Vance, Mehrbach, and Van Schaick.

Finance—Aldermen Mehrbach, Gilsey, Conover, Vance, and Van Schaick.

Law Department—Aldermen Van Schaick, Falconer, and Fitzgerald.

Printing and Advertising—Aldermen Gilsey, Falconer, and Wilder.

Railroads—Aldermen Conover, Fitzgerald, and McLaren.

Repairs and Supplies—Aldermen Fitzgerald, Joyce, and Coman.

Roads—Aldermen Joyce, Radde, and Plunkitt.

Salaries and Officers—Aldermen Martin, Mehrbach, and Coman.

Streets—Aldermen Joyce, Radde, and Plunkitt.

Street Pavements—Aldermen Falconer, Gilsey, and Vance.

Lands and Places—Aldermen Wilder, Martin, and Conover.

Messrs. CONNOVER, VAN SCHAICK and GILSEY were, on motion, excused from serving on the Finance Committee.

Several petitions were presented. Among them was one from inhabitants of the Twelfth and Twenty-second Wards, asking for more facilities of railroad travel to the remote sections of Manhattan Island late at night. Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Alderman MEHRBACH offered a resolution to make Messrs. CLARENCE, LEVY & Co. printers to the Board, at the rate of $17,000 a year for printing and $3,000 for stationery.

Mr. MEHRBACH said that the printing and stationery had cost the City $1,000,000 during the last year, and he hoped to have the bill amount to much less for the current year.

Mr. VAN SCHAICK—I think the matter should be given to the lowest bidder.

The resolution was then referred to the Committee on Printing and Stationery.

The following preamble and resolutions, presented by Mr. CONOVER, were referred to the Committee on the Law Department:

Whereas, Chapter 944 of the laws of 1871 declares that certain persons therein named "and their assigns are authorized at any time hereafter to manufacture and sell gas, to be used for the purpose of lighting all that portion of the City of New-York lying north of the centre line of Seventy-ninth-street, including all of the Central Park in its entire width and length, * * * and to adopt any other necessary means to furnish gas to any inhabitant in said portion of said City, and to the said Central Park;" and whereas, said act declares that "the rights and privileges hereby granted are exclusive," and that "this act shall be deemed a public act, and shall be favorably construed for the purposes herein expressed and declared in all Courts and places whatsoever; and

Whereas, While it is not clear that said act created a corporation as defined by the Constitution of this State, yet it is manifestly intended to be used as such, and therefore is in conflict with section 1, article 8, of said Constitution; and whereas, the anomalous body so created is vested with the exclusive right, for a time to come, and whereas, in the matter of illuminating gas, competition, without exclusive rights, should be fostered; and whereas, the act of 1871 deprives the City and its taxpayers and residents of all benefit from such competition; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of New-York, now in session, be and hereby is respectfully but earnestly requested to repeal said act, chapter 944 of 1871.

Resolved, That the Senators and Assemblymen from this County be, and each of them is hereby requested to use all proper influence to secure the early repeal of said act.

A communication was received from the Controller informing the Board that the State tax for 1872 is fixed at $5,745,049 32. Controller GREEN concluded his communication as follows:

The fiscal year of the State of New-York extends from Oct. 1 in each year to the same day in the succeeding year, while by law the assessment rolls in the County of New-York, with the tax entered therein, are required to be finally completed and delivered to the Receiver of Taxes, in and for the City of New-York, on or before the 1st day of September in each year, at which time the valuations of the State have been determined by the Board of Equalization of State Taxes, or the amount of tax in each county ascertained. To collect the tax of Oct. 1, 1872, to Oct. 1, 1873, in the levy of 1872, will impose an additional burden on the tax-payer this year, which does not appear to me to be expedient or advisable, however desirable it may be to harmonize the fiscal year of the City with that of the State.

Respectfully submitted,
ANDREW H. GREEN, Controller.

Some other business of a routine nature was transacted, after which the Board adjourned.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

This Board also met yesterday, President HALL in the chair. A communication had been sent to the Corporation Counsel, requesting him to inform the Board how many clerks and attachés this Board is entitled to, and what power they possess in relation to the salaries of such persons; particularly, whether they have power, by resolution or ordinance, to increase or decrease the number of their clerks and attachés, or to increase or decrease their respective salaries. Mr. O'GORMAN replied that the Board, according to the charter, has the appointment of the clerks and officers; that chapter 583, Laws of 1871, provides that the Board of Apportionment has been created, that Board is empowered to regulate all salaries of officials and employes of the City and County Government. Assuming that the power to regulate all salaries conferred in the statutes includes power to increase or diminish the same, it is evident that the power to increase or diminish the salaries of the officials and employes of this Board is vested in the Board of Apportionment, he was therefore of the opinion that this Board had the power to increase or diminish the number of its officers at pleasure, provided that the salaries of such officers do not exceed the appropriation made therefor, and that the power to increase or diminish the salaries of the officers of this Board is vested in the Board of Apportionment.

The counsel's opinion was ordered to be filed.

Mr. PINEKNEY presented the following preamble and resolution, which was referred:

Whereas, It appears by the records of the Finance Department that HENRY STARKWEATHER has collected from the City Treasury as fees for services as Collector of Assessments from May 11, 1867, to July 31, 1871, the sum of $544,231 96; that such compensation was paid him in pursuance of an ordinance of the Common Council, passed July 18, 1853, which prescribes the fees of the office to be 2½ per cent. upon all assessments collected, and an ordinance passed November, 1853, prescribes the fees of the office to be 2 per cent. on all assessments returned to the clerk as arrears not collected; that it is the imperative duty of the Common Council at the earliest day practicable, by appropriate legislation to relieve the owners and leasees of property in this City assessed for public improvements for this enormous burden, therefore, be it

Resolved, If the Board of Aldermen concur, that the ordinances of the Common Council in relation to the fees of Collectors of Assessments passed July 18, 1853, and Nov. 22, 1858, be and the same are hereby repealed and annulled.

An ordinance was attached providing that the compensation of the Collector and Deputy Collectors of Assessment be amended so that they shall each receive an equal part of two and one-half per cent. on all items of assessments collected by the Bureau, and of two per cent. on all unpaid items of assessments returned during their terms of office.

The following is a statement of the account of the Collector of Assessments from Feb. 28, 1862, to Oct. 31, 1871: Whole amount collected, $26,401,684 63; payments, &c., &c., $23,636,761 49. The assessments for taking the land for the public drives or Boulevard amounted to $1,727,218; fees from May 11, 1867, to July 31, 1871, by the City, $455,263 66; by the County, $68,954 30. Total, $544,237 96. If the Collector paid $2,500 a year to each of the four deputies, say $40,000 for four years, his usual net fees for four years were $504,237 96.

Resolutions were adopted providing as follows: That the papers referred by the late Board of Assistant Aldermen to their respective committees, and which were left in the possession of such committees at the time of the final adjournment of the old Board be referred to the appropriate Committees of the Board; that RICHARD J. WALSH be appointed Sergeant-at-arms; that the Committee on Printing and Advertising be instructed to report at its next meeting the expenses of printing the minutes of the Board in pamphlet form, the names of the several newspapers officially publishing the minutes, the amount paid to each paper, and how far the matter is under the control of the Board, and what reduction, if any, can be properly made in those expenses.

It was decided also that the claim of WILLIAM P. SIMPSON to a seat as member from the Fifteenth Assembly District be dismissed and declined, and ERASTUS LITTLEFIELD was declared duly elected and qualified as a member of the Board.

The Controller, in response to a letter of inquiry, sent in a communication stating, that in pursuance of section 1, chapter 574, laws of 1871, the following papers are designated by the Mayor and Controller as "Corporation papers:" New-York Transcript, Daily News, Star, Sun, World, Tribune, Express, Staats Zeitung, Herald, Commercial Advertiser, Irish American, Metropolitan Record, Atlas, Irish Citizen, Sunday Times, Leader, Woehenblattaker, New-Yorker Journal, and Sunday Mercury. The Controller said he had been advised that there is no judgment of record against the Mayor, Aldermen, &c., in favor of the Sunday Democrat, although an action has been brought by the proprietor of such paper, and an answer interposed denying the City's right liability, on the ground that such paper had not been designated to publish corporation notices or notices or notices, or advertisements, which action is still pending.

The Board then adjourned.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association—Addresses by Revs. Hepworth, Tyng, Scudder, &c.

The nineteenth anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association took place last evening at Association Hall. The President, Mr. MORRIS K. JESUP, delivered the introductory address. Having explained the objects of the Association, he referred to its financial condition, observing that during the past year they incurred various expenses in connection with the building, amounting to $18,000, of which $12,000 was borrowed from the Board of Trustees. He solicited the co-operation of the friends of the institution in this regard, for in every other respect it was a thorough and complete success.

Rev. Mr. HEPWORTH next addressed the audience, he said: Fifty generations have gone by since Christ spoke, and yet the world has not climbed high enough to touch the uttermost hem of his garments. The hidden things of God are hidden still, and the mysteries of godliness are to be mysteries for many generations to come. The real genuine spirit of Christianity is not even in our hearts. The bright disk of the sun is hidden; only a segment is seen, and yet so great is the light which comes from that small part of the whole that we turn with eager eyes toward it, and we lift up our hands in joyful thanksgiving and with one accord we remember that we may see the full dawn of the perfect day. The reverend gentleman, having alluded to missionary work in European cities and to the unselfishness of the missionaries in visiting prisons and low dens, said:

Now, we believe not so much in the cure as in the prevention of crime. We believe in that old proverb which tells us that an "ounce of mother is worth a pound of parson," and it is only another way of saying that it is better not to contract the disease than to take a sure and safe remedy after it has been contracted. The Christianity of today is a Christianity of prevention, it is the Christianity of education towards the ideal, it is the Christianity of moral attraction towards the great solar centre of our religious system, which is Jesus Christ, the everlasting Lover of mankind.

Rev. HENRY M. SCUDDER cautioned the young men to avoid the occasions of sin and exercise all energies for its repression.

Rev. Mr. TYNG, Jr., in an eloquent and practical address, struck at the basis of the present degraded condition of some young men, and advocated the development of a sound and healthy body as the best and most Christian means of remedying it.

The meeting concluded with prayer.

The Market Savings Bank—The Latest Rumors—Meeting of Depositors.

The excitement among the unfortunate depositors of the Market Savings Bank still continues. A large crowd was assembled in the neighborhood of the bank throughout the whole of yesterday. A rumor was freely circulated that the embezzlement attributed to CONKLIN is a job of the most infamous description. It is said that it is a matter of the utmost improbability that the Secretary could abstract and abscond with such a large amount of securities and stocks without the connivance of the other officials of the bank. This rumor was discussed by the depositors yesterday, and the conclusion arrived at was that the bank did not want CONKLIN to be captured, and that he would never be brought to justice. The new receiver, Mr. WORTH, does not express any very strong hopes of paying the depositors a large percentage, but did intimate yesterday that the result of his investigation may result in throwing a flood of light upon the evil doings of the officials, and bring within the meshes within the clutches of the law, who now hope to evade it. A crowded meeting of depositors took place yesterday, at 3 P. M., with Mr. WOODRUFF in the chair. Nothing of importance was done, except that many of the depositors took occasion to express their fervent hope that criminal proceedings would be instituted against the late President and officials of the Market Bank.

Finances of the Commissioners of Emigration.

The report of the Treasurer of the Commissioners of Emigration, N. HART JACKSON, to be presented today at the meeting of the Board, sets forth that the net receipts of commutation money for the year ending Dec. 31, 1871, were $372,528. There was expended for the support of Ward's Island institutions, $272,-996 75; for the poor throughout the State and in the City not under the charge of the Commissioners, $39,860; in out-door relief, $6,093; in forwarding emigrants to their destinations and in returning destitute emigrants to Europe, $9,572. There was a cash balance on hand of $173,000 on Jan. 1. The balance of money unappropriated at present is $8,000.

Sports on the Ice.

Yesterday the Paterson Curling Club visited the Central Park Curling Pond and played their first match this season with the St. Andrew's Club of this City. When the umpire called "Time" at 5 P. M. it was found that the game was a tie—33 to 33. Two more ends were then played, and finally St. Andrew's came in the victors by 4 shots, 41 to 37.

Today two matches take place, the Caledonian Club playing the Thistles, and the Burns Club the Brooklyn.

On Friday a grand match is to take place at Lake View, near Paterson, between the Jersey City and Paterson Clubs.

Today the Brooklyn Skating Club's first annual festival takes place on the Capitoline Lake, Brooklyn. The display of skating will be by experts from Boston, Philadelphia and this City.

The Contest for Frear's Seat—Additional Testimony.

The Committee of the Assembly on Privileges and Elections, appointed to take testimony on the petition of Mr. FREDERICK KILLIAN for the seat in the Legislature held by ALEXANDER FREAR, met again, yesterday, at the Stuyvesant House. The session lasted until late in the evening, and thirty witnesses were examined. The testimony of the witnesses was to the effect that they voted for Mr. KILLIAN, but their ballots were differently reported. Alderman PLUNKITT testified to the receipt of a protest by the Board of Aldermen requesting the examination of witnesses in relation to the fraud. The investigation has not yet terminated.

The New-York College Examination—First Day.

Yesterday the semi-annual examination of the New-York College was commenced. The Senior Class was examined in spherical astronomy by Prof. COMPTON, the Junior Class in physics by Prof. DOREMUS, the Sophomore Class in logic by Prof. HUNTSMAN, in calculus by Prof. DOCHARTY, the Freshman Class in literature by
